Warmouth Meets Friends

Metropolitan newspapers recently carried an interesting story about Chaplain Don L. Warmouth, formerly of Shavertown. While serving with the Tank Destroyers in France, the Chaplain came across an ambulance bearing the name "Evert, Mich." where he had served as pastor in the Methodist Church before entering the Army. Upon investigation, he located three young men from Evert who were serving with the ambulance. The four had a pleasant time exchanging news from home and comparing snapshots. "It was quite a reunion," the Chaplain remarked later.

Chaplain Warmouth is now stationed at the Fourth Convalescent Hospital in Belgium. Mrs. Warmouth, the former Norma Williams of Shavertown, and their two sons reside at Madison, New Jersey.

Ensign Harold A. Brown, son of Dr. and Mrs. H. A. Brown of Lehman, is now stationed at the Compass Office of the U. S. Naval Frontier Base at Commonwealth Pier 1, Boston, Mass. His work is to adjust compasses on ships out in the harbor and to de-magnetize ships.

HOSPITAL PATIENTS

Ruth Ann Gabel, Chase, Nesbitt.
Ernest Fritz, Idetown, General.
Mrs. Alden Dietz, Beaumont, Nesbitt.
Mrs. Gilbert Carpenter, Alderson, Mercy.

Pillar To Post

The whole thing is very confusing. If the object as transferred to paper suggests either a beanpot or half a dozen onions, it isn't art. If you can smell the beans, or if your eyes tend to water at the sight of the onions, you may as well admit that you are on the wrong track and start all over again. This is not a photograph, it is a picture.

Half a dozen onions arranged around a beanpot present enough difficulties when done in black and white, but when executed in color by the sky's the limit. An onion, to the inartistic mind, is simply onion-colored, yellow or orange or glowing with an opalescent green. As executed in a still-life by a master hand, it shows touches of blue and red and purple, with a lovely shiny spot where the north light of the studio brought out the high-lights. Onions are durable, probably the most durable of vegetables. They appear again and again, arranged in a brass bowl, spilling from a blue pottery dish, nestled against a green glass bottle.

You've got to know your onions, or you can't paint. The walls of the studio are hung with onions in charcoal, onions in pastels, and onions done in oils. No water-colors. The place fairly reeks with onions. The beanpots range from stalwart affairs capable of housing beans enough for a barracks, to tall skinny beanpots holding a mere whiff. It all depends upon the eye of the beholder. So long as the shadows are richly deep behind the beanpot, and the onions in front of it globular and glossy, it's a picture.

We stand before our easels every Friday morning, and size up the current crop of onions. At the end of two hours we are reduced to despair, but the next Friday morning we are back on the job. Today there are carrots along with the onions, and a green pepper points up the color scheme. We are making progress.

Next week we will add six points worth of stewing beef and have a good vegetable soup, the variety that Della Lutes once referred to as "chewing soup."

There is nothing these days that presents a prettier picture than a tureen of nice hot vegetable soup with triangles of hot buttered toast on the side.

Cold Weather And Powder Snows Make Ideal Skiing Conditions

By Max Dreher

Heavy falls of light, powdery snow have made ideal skiing conditions this winter in the Back Mountain country. Moisture that victory gardeners prayed for all during the hot, dry summer is now being scattered profusely over meadows and hillsides bearing out the contention of old timers that parched summers are usually followed by hard winters like 1936, 1941 and 1944.

While heavy snows and freezing temperatures have been welcomed by the younger element, motorists, especially those living off the main plowed highways, have cursed driving conditions with as much enthusiasm as their young sons and daughters have welcomed King Winter.

Ever since a few days before Thanksgiving the ground has been covered with snow. Whenever it has started to melt freezing weather has retarded its departure just long enough for another snowfall to keep the ground covered. This has created a crusty foundation for other powder snows—the delight of outdoor enthusiasts.

The hilly fields on Clifford Space's farm on the outskirts of Dallas have become an afternoon, evening or week-end mecca for young skiers. Sleds and toboggans are in the minority but Paul Shaver, Jr., finds plenty of squealing passengers for his toboggan. The gatherings at the top of the hill are informal conferences for making plans for ski hikes and other winter sports throughout the winter.

One of these tours was made by Harold Niemeier, Jim and Bill Waters and Ralph Harrison. They were out all one beautiful Saturday, making the circle to Huntsville Dam and then home by way of Center Hill. They carried their lunch in Knapsacks and ate it in a sheltered spot at noon. The scenery was beautiful, they said, and looked just like picture books, and the snow was perfect for skiing. Jack Pauling, Herbert Dreher, (the author's brother) and the author went on one short hike to Posten's Pond, around Huntsville Dam and then home through the pine woods about one mile south of the Huntsville Road. The pine trees laden with snow were extremely beautiful and glistened with snowflakes that looked like so many small diamonds. By the time the trio reached home and entered the house purple and yellow spots flashed before their eyes. They were almost snowblind.

There have been many silly and awkward spills. Fortunately none has been hurt. Once the author was coming down a hill very fast. Whiz! there wasn't any snow under him. The next second he landed in a snowdrift and came up looking like a snowman. He had gone over a cliff.

Others also took nice spills. One in particular stands out. A skier slid half way down the hill on his face breaking his ski binding. There are many others who have taken fancy leaps.

The three Peirce boys who moved here last fall from Greenfield, Mass. have taken to the Pennsylvania winter like snowbirds. They live in it from morning until night when they are not in classrooms. Barbara Phillips and Virginia Bessecker are a couple of other enthusiasts.

Wherever you go you hear the skiers say: "I hope the snow lasts".

Kromelbein Dies In Auto Accident

Dr. Malcolm Borthwick was summoned and arrived within a few minutes. Mr. Kromelbein was taken to Nesbitt Memorial Hospital by James Shanlitz of Wilkes-Barre. He was pronounced dead upon admission, cause of death being a broken neck.

Fred Kromelbein was born in Tawanda, the son of the late Henry and Minnie Kromelbein. While he was still an infant the family moved to Wyoming Valley. Several years after his own marriage he moved to Noxen where he conducted a hotel from 1912 until 1920. After retiring from the hotel business he was for several years employed by the Glen Alden Coal Company before going with Bartels.

He was the father of the late Leon Kromelbein of Tunkhannock, for many years an outstanding baseball pitcher, who dropped dead on November 13, 1943, at Dallas Township High School grounds while watching a football game. A daughter, Mrs. Mildred Willauer, died on March 31, 1942.

Beside his wife, the former Bertha Melcher, Mr. Kromelbein leaves a daughter, Mrs. Loren Case, of Noxen and a son, Pvt. George Kromelbein, with the armed forces in Europe. He also leaves the following grandchildren: Leland and Frederick Case of Noxen, now in the South Pacific, and Verna Jean and Larry Case also of Noxen; Robert Kromelbein of Tunkhannock, now with the U.S. Coast Guard; Harold Kromelbein and Mrs. Harold Reynolds also of Tunkhannock, and Ronald Willauer, a student at Girard College. The following brothers and sister also survive: William, Cincinnati; Henry, Wilkes-Barre; Ellis, Johnson City, and Mrs. John Bodle, Carverton.

The funeral will be held Saturday morning at 10 from the late home in Shavertown with services in charge of Rev. Herbert E. Frankfort of St. Paul's Lutheran Church. Interment will be in West Pittston Cemetery with Masonic services at the grave.

Mr. Kromelbein was a member of George M. Dallas Lodge, 531, F. & A. M.; Keystone Consistory of Scranton, and St. Paul's Lutheran Church of Shavertown.

George E. Foote Called By Death

Was Former Engineer For Stutz Motor Co.

George E. Foote, 57, at one time assistant mechanical engineer for the Stutz Motorcar Company in Indianapolis, died yesterday morning at 10:30 at his home in West Dallas following a prolonged illness. His death came a week to the day from the burial of his mother-in-law, the late Carrie D. Ryman.

Born and reared in Cleveland, Ohio, Mr. Foote was a graduate of Case School of Applied Science and followed a mechanical and industrial career throughout his lifetime. His father was likewise a mechanical engineer.

Before coming to Dallas he was employed in that capacity with the Burford Printing Company of Indianapolis. He was capable and resourceful and could solve mechanical problems in most any line of activity.

After settling in Dallas Township so that his family might be with Mrs. Ryman who was ill for several years, he helped in the establishment of the N.Y.A. workshops in Wilkes-Barre and was for a number of years an instructor there. More recently he was employed in engineering capacities with other industrial firms. He was a member of the Automotive Society of Engineers and of the Masons in Indianapolis.

His mother preceded him in death a year ago at the age of ninety-six. Her home was in Indianapolis.

Beside his widow, Florence, he leaves three daughters, Carrie, and Mary at home and Mrs. Margaret Buchanan of Indianapolis.

Also a brother, Dorsey E. Foote of Indianapolis and a sister, Mrs. George Salisbury of Cleveland.

The funeral will be held Monday afternoon at 2 from the Brickel Funeral Home Dallas with services in charge of Rev. Francis Freeman of Firwood Methodist Church. Interment will be in the family plot in Warden Cemetery. Friends may call at the Funeral Home Sunday from 3 to 5 and from 7 to 9.
