

And now comes another Christmas to be added to your store of memories. We hope that this Christmas of 1945 will be a very enjoyable one—fulfilling all the fine traditions of the Yule season.

Accept our hearty thanks for the pleasant associations of the past year. Once again we say . . .

MERRY CHRISTMAS

A Merry Old-Fashioned Christmas greeting to our many friends and customers from everywhere. And a special heart-felt greeting to the boys and girls who helped make the world safe for Santa Claus.

Christmas Is All Of These Christmas is the good will shared at the family hearth; the carols sung together; the candle in the window; the beautiful light that shines in everyone's heart. And it is more than that—ever so much more!

We can't begin to put into mere words all that Christmas is, nor can we fully express our ardent wish that you will completely enjoy yourselves.

To each of us the word Christmas summons up many happy memories. To all of us it again brings our old fond hopes. For all of us it is a day of charm and endearment, the happiest day of the whole year.

May you feel the same full measure of happiness that we are feeling once again this year. Best wishes for a most enjoyable Christmas season.

The keynote of Christmas is the unselfish interest that we have in others. This is one of the secrets of the joys of the Yule season. May each gift breathe of love and devotion and bind the ties of love and affection more securely.

As for ourselves we wish to express our appreciation for your loyalty to us in 1945. A Merry Christmas to you.

A good way to keep Christmas is to bring joy to everyone we can. This, we believe, is the spirit of our community . . . which is the most important reason why living here affords such genuine pleasure.

To you who have been so kindly toward us this year we wish the whole world of happiness and joy for this merry season. A good Christmas to everyone of you.

A salute to our friends and a big Merry Christmas to all of you.

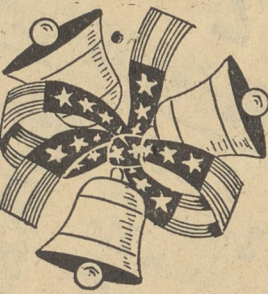

And a very reverent Salute to our men and women who brought us Victory this year.

A right Merry Christmas to all the fine people we know in the Back Mountain region, and especially to all our young friends who again made Christmas mean the Nativity of the Prince of Peace.

Forgetting a careworn world our thoughts are directed toward the true Christmas spirit. Independent of time or place or circumstance, it embraces all. We are glad that nothing can escape its magic spell.

We sincerely thank you for your patronage of the last year and wish you the season's best.

There are ever so many ways of extending the season's greetings to all our cherished friends, but nothing seems quite so sincere as the good old way which we cheerfully say again this year.

A Merry Christmas to You.

David Deater

There are so many of our good friends in the armed forces to which we wish to say "Merry Christmas" that we are unable to greet each one individually.

We want to take this opportunity, then, to say it to all of you at once.

Today's grown-ups are only yesterday's children who not so long ago stood around the tree, who just before Christmas were just as good as they could be.

So let's all be joyful again, as though we were all as little children.

We wish to thank our good friends and welcome our new acquaintances. Let us be happy on this Christmas of 1945.

Harvey's Lake Light Company

Measuring by the span of years it has been a long long time since that first lovely Christmas, but it is as fresh in our minds as if it were only yesterday. We are glad that the same kindly spirit of past Christmases is with us again.

Christmas means happiness and Christmas must be shared. We want to share our Christmas with you.

Stop a minute in your busy day and listen—listen to the happy bustle of Christmas in the air; hear the sound of bells and laughter. Listen a minute and you'll notice that you no longer hear the roar of war. Listen to your heart and hear there a little prayer that peace will rule forever.

We wish you all a very happy Christmas.

First National Bank Of Dallas

To our old friends and new. We are quite old fashioned in at least one thing—And that is our way of greeting you every Christmas time. We extend this old-fashioned greeting in this fine old-fashioned season, for Christmas itself is always ageless.

May the season brighten your heart and your year.
