

About that trailer I bought—Well, it seems that somebody set fire to the interior of a housing trailer in a government housing area in San Diego.

At first it seemed hopeless. I kept writing higher and higher men on the Federal Housing payroll. All this took weeks, and in the meantime we bought a house and I started school.

I kept up the work on the trailer more as a hobby than anything else, wading through letters like " . . . reference is made to your letter of 4-7-47 concerning burned-out trailer No. FSA-14669, of project CAL-48841.6, you might write our office at 155 West Washington, L.A. 15 and refer them to FPHA Declaration No. 399 of 2-14-44 on their form No. WAA-1001."

to wonder about dragging the hulk up the coast three hundred and fifty miles. Four days later I received a bill of sale and a sharp notice to get the thing rolling.

Fortunately, my neighbor, George, was equal to the task of fashioning a hitch, locating wheels and tires and all the other myriad of mechanical problems.

We checked into the housing project, loaded with all the letters, bill of sale, and official description ready to sign a ream of receipts. But I signed nothing. They just pointed, and we went to work.

I told you last week of the trip up, and maybe in a few months I can tell what finally happened to the trailer. Right now I sit with a shaghaied cat and survey a battered trailer resting at the lower end of our lot.

The first mint established in the United States was located at Philadelphia, in 1792. The first coin produced was the copper cent.

has been its last.

It is a marvelous thing, a lesson in real citizenship, when folks are so sold on a project that the carrying of it to completion means more to them than individual acclaim, when the accomplishment is the main thing rather than the credit.

It would be impossible to list everybody who has contributed to the foundation of the Back Mountain Memorial Library. There are people who contributed boxes of books, who neither asked for nor wished credit for them.

There is the Book Club, founded by Mrs. Lewis LeGrand of Dallas. This group realized the necessity for a library nearer and more readily accessible than those in Kingston and Wilkes-Barre.

There is the Rotary Club, which, under the presidency of Mr. Paul Warriner, present head of the Board of Directors of the Library, entertained the suggestion of the Book Club.

There is the Dallas Post, which had already printed in a box at the top of the front page the proposals of a so-called Five-Year Plan for the region, featuring a Public Library.

The Library was in the air. When an enterprise is in the air, everybody is willing to help. They call it mob psychology.

The Dallas Woman's Club has contributed time and effort and a great deal of money to the venture.

Individuals, most of them too modest to wish to be mentioned by name, have come across with ideas and money. There is one in particular without whom the library might well have curled up its toes and died.

Yes, it is a marvelous thing when folks are willing to sidetrack their own prejudices, give up their own pet peeves, and work together for the common good. It makes you believe in democracy as a going institution.

STATE POLICE SAY:

Avoid soft shoulders. Another dangerous springtime accident hazard is the soft shoulders, or berm, along the improved portion. The driver who permits his vehicle to drop off the hard surface onto these soft shoulders is very likely to crash before he gets back, especially if he is traveling fast. In order to prevent such accidents, be alert and KEEP THE SPEED DOWN.
