Timely Reminders From The Pennsylvania State College School of Agriculture

Kill Weeds Quickly—Unless the farmer wants to spend years fighting weeds, he should kill all new weeds as soon as they appear. Large patches of weeds in some fields are evidence of what happens where a few weeds, which could have been pulled, were allowed to go to seed.

Check the Binder—A few minutes spent in checking over the binder now may save hours after it goes into the field. Cleaning the tying apparatus, and giving all moving parts a thorough lubrication.

Can Save Berry Patch—An intensive cultural program can be used to prepare the strawberry patch for a second crop next year. Extension Circular 290, available at county agents' offices, gives full information on strawberry growing.

Pick Quality Peas—Watch the peas carefully and pick them when at the just right stage for high edible quality.

Cut Lodged Wheat—To prevent smothering of clover and alfalfa seedlings, lodged wheat should be cut for hay or silage.

Prune Roses Sparingly—Removal of dead blooms is enough pruning for everblooming climbing roses.

Keep Production Records—Asserting that "the quality and quantity of milk each cow produces are the only reliable guides to the amount of feed required," C. R. Gearhart, extension dairy specialist of the Pennsylvania State College, urges keeping production records to determine ration needs for economical production. Overfeeding is wasteful, and underfeeding is poor economy.

Keep Up with Tractor—Since tractors, like any other machine in hard use, may need occasional overhauling, make periodic check-ups to spot any possible trouble before it develops.

Train Eye and Hand—Instruction provided by the Agricultural Extension Service for farm boys and girls learning to judge livestock "trains the eye and the hand" to pick out the prize-winning qualities in the animals.

Cut Peonies Lightly—When cutting peony blooms, leave some of the foliage on the base of the stalk, and cut only a few blooms from each plant to keep them in vigorous condition.

Spray Cows with DDT—One application of DDT spray, made from one-half pound of 50 per cent wettable powder to 25 gallons of water, will protect cows from flies for 2 to 3 weeks.

4-H Club Week—For some 1,000 Pennsylvania 4-H boys and girls, "all roads will meet" at the Pennsylvania State College August 11 for the annual 4-H Club Week.
