Frequent Rains Rot Some Crops

Cultivation, Spraying And Harvesting Slowed

Pennsylvania crop and weather report of the United States and Pennsylvania Departments of Agriculture for the week ending July 22 follows.

Average temperature for the State was 70 degrees slightly below the normal 72 degrees for the period. Average precipitation was 1.95 inches almost an inch above the normal .98 inches.

Rains were frequent, and in some cases excessive. Growth of vegetation was favored, but cultivation and spraying of row crops were hindered, while harvesting of grains and hay was seriously delayed. Some tilled fields were washed by heavy rains.

Excessive soil moisture caused corn in poorly drained fields to turn yellow, but most of the crop benefited by the warmth and made excellent growth. Frequent rains have hindered cultivation, and many fields are weedy. Wheat is ripe in all counties, but cutting generally is much delayed. In southern areas many fields remain to be cut, while that in shocks is deteriorating. Some grain has sprouted. Little threshing has been done, but combined wheat is yielding well. Oats continues to improve, but more has lodged. Early fields in central counties are ripening and in the south cutting progresses as weather permits. Some barley is spoiling—most cut by binder remains to be threshed.

Potatoes made excellent growth, but spraying has been difficult and late blight is spreading. Harvesting of Cobblers in the southeast is progressing. In northern counties timothy and clover are rotting on the ground as frequent rains prevent drying. Delayed harvesting is also affecting quality of the standing crop. Second growth alfalfa developed rapidly in central and southern areas. Soybeans are doing nicely. Condition of pastures is good to excellent.

Harvesting of Transparent apples is well along. Early peaches are now being marketed and the late crop making good progress. Grapes are developing rapidly. Late cabbage and celery plants have started nicely. Snap beans are yielding well, but need more sun. Sweet corn in gardens is maturing. The supply from commercial areas will be light until early August.
