

BEAUMONT

Did you know the Ladies Aid picnic had been postponed to Thursday, August 12, at Perrin's Marsch?

The Emory Straleys joined the Smiths, Ohlmans and MacDougalls at Bob's Lake, Canada this week.

Six hundred and ninety-one cans of fruits and vegetables were done at the Cannery in July. Mrs. Knight of Huntsville could not believe you could can three bushels of string beans in a few hours, but she found it is so at the Cannery! Call Mrs. Earl Johnson, Harvey's Lake 3418 for an appointment.

An orchid to Harold and Donald Pilger who used the power mower on the school grounds and baseball diamond this past week. Those boys have civic pride!

The William Arch Austins are off again on a trek to the Canadian wilds. George Jr. and Douglas Gay of Tunkhannock will accompany the Austins as far as Perth, Ont., where the boys will spend the rest of the summer with relatives.

Sad news, kiddoes! School starts Tuesday, September 7.

The construction of the Nile Hess home is progressing nicely, so is the Elmer Daley place.

James Robinson of Newark is spending some time with the Tom Gaveks.

SPORT NEWS

East Dallas had too much Martin and "Peanuts" Austin for Beaumont Sunday, so East Dallas is rightfully crowing. "We beat Beaumont 4-3." A capacity crowd rooting for Beaumont in spite of their errors.

Where Odd Fellows Care For Aged

Odd Fellows Home At Middletown To Welcome Visitors On August 21

Odd Fellows Home of Pennsylvania at Middletown, one of the eight situated in the Keystone state, represents a million dollar investment in fraternal benevolence. Its imposing main building, crowning a hill close to the Philadelphia and Harrisburg Highway, is a gigantic structure containing 238 rooms besides kitchen, dining room, library, sun parlors, chapel, infirmary and a number of special rooms.

When the cornerstone of the present building was laid in 1924, the Haven could already look back on a half-century of distinguished service in behalf of aged and indigent brothers. Its first site, Vine and 65th streets, in Philadelphia, was acquired in 1876, and welcomed its first guest the following January.

From its vantage point—overlooking the Susquehanna River—the home reflects the labors and high resolve of those responsible for the 138 residents now dwelling there. From its own fields comes the meat and produce for the dining room tables. And from the generosity of hundreds of Pennsylvania Odd Fellows who reside in this vicinity comes the funds to make this Middletown Home a true haven for the aged and infirm.

On Saturday, August 21, the Middletown Home, in observance of its Second Home Day, will welcome as its visitors the Odd Fellows from the central and the eastern portions of Pennsylvania. An elaborate afternoon program has been planned for this occasion.

Home inspection by the visitors will be followed by a concert by the Bainbridge, Pa., Odd Fellows Band and neoclay competitive drills under the auspices of the Patriarchs Militant. State Senator Frank W. Ruth will give an address. Lunch will be available for the visitors.

Urge Drivers Examinations For Those Involved In Fatal Accidents

For Those Involved In Fatal Accidents

The Pennsylvania Automobile Association seeking ways and means of increasing highway safety, has gone on record in favoring "fitness examinations" for drivers involved in fatal automobile accidents in Pennsylvania.

The organization said it would recommend such a plan to the 1949 Legislature. In addition to requiring examinations for motorists involved in accidents wherein a person is killed or injured, the group would have a similar examination given for drivers involved in two or more accidents in the same year where damage amounted to $50 or more.

The association pointed out that a large percentage of the traffic accidents in Pennsylvania "can be attributed to operators of motor vehicles committing driving errors" and recommends that any person upon being examined, who fails to pass the test, be denied the privilege of operating a motor vehicle in the State.

The examinations called for by the organization, would be conducted at a suitable location in each county under competent officers of the Pennsylvania State Police.

It was pointed out that any such examination should be "of such caliber as to enable the examiner to determine not only the ability of the person being examined to adequately control the vehicle, but also to determine his (or her) mental attitude toward driving, physical qualifications and knowledge of motor vehicle rules and regulations."

Why goats prefer New, Smaller-Size Pellets

New Beacon Goat Ration is more economical for you, too

For some time, the Beacon Milling Company has believed that goats would prefer a smaller size pellet. We thought also that it would have other advantages in feeding and economy. So—we tested the small pellet on numerous goat farms . . . and found that without exception, goats preferred it.

1. The new Beacon Goat Ration with smaller size pellets does not separate nearly as much from the rest of the ration.
2. The entire ration is eaten. Even the "fussy" goat does not leave the new Beacon Pellets.
3. You can feed larger amounts of feed.
4. Beacon's new Goat Ration is more economical to use.
