

BILL'S BITS

By Bill Hart

Kingston Township uncovered a tricky ground attack during the fourth period on Thanksgiving morning to score a hard-fought 14-0 victory over the Dallas Township Redskins . . . This victory gives the Kates possession of the first leg on the Dallas Rotary Club trophy.

The ancient Statue of Liberty play with a new twist added by Coach Ted Szela enabled Kingston Township to score its first touchdown . . . End Bob Morgan came around from the left side and took the ball, running to his right and just before reaching the line of scrimmage tossed a perfect thirty-yard pass to the other end, Dick Handley, who crossed the goal line untouched . . . The second touchdown was scored following interception of a Redskin desperation pass in the closing minutes of the game . . . McAvoy plunged through the line for the score . . . The final extra point was scored on one of the prettiest plays seen in the entire Valley all season . . . The play was a reverse handoff with just about every eligible player on the team seeming to handle the ball . . . It ended with Adams circling his left end with three blockers in front while the entire Dallas squad was faked to a man over to the right side of the field.

With a stiff, cold breeze blowing during the entire game, both teams were obliged to forget all aerial tactics and resort to a straight ground attack . . . Slippery and uncertain footing hampered the backs of both teams . . . Dallas Township outplayed the Kates the first half with McCusker, Flanagan, and Ostrum outstanding as defensive linemen . . . Redmond carried the ball for some good gains for the Redskins, along with Wallace and Wilson . . . Bob Bellas, Dallas safetyman, made a nice return of a Katie kick.

The game was played before almost 2,000 fans . . . The cars lined the parking lot, adjacent streets and part of the Tunkhannock highway . . . I wonder if some of the Dallas Township School District solons gave any thought to the revenue (the green folding stuff that's so necessary) that could have been taken in had the field been fenced and regular ticket gates established . . . It was bitter cold in the open and many fans were wondering where the hot dogs, coffee etc., which had been served at previous games had disappeared to.

Dallas Township has started its basketball practice sessions, with a squad of forty-two men reporting for the first practice . . . The team is led by Jay Bloomer, the only member of last year's varsity returning . . . Coach Tom Edwards announces that the Redskins will engage Pringle in two practice games on a home and away basis, December 7 and 14 . . . The Township girls have been practicing steadily and promise to be in top shape for the season's opener. Dallas Borough is moving right along . . . Coach Rockavich has been stressing physical training the past week and plans to have his bunch in top condition all season . . . The Borough is using a fast break that is fast ! ! ! . . . The Blue and Gold will be hampered this season by the lack of any appreciable amount of height . . . The Boro cagers have had two practice battles already . . . One against the Wilkes-Barre Township squad and the other against the Dallas Arrows, an independent team led by Al Knecht . . . The Boro girls started practice recently under the watchful eye of Miss Florence Parks, dean of the Back Mountain girls' coaches . . . Having lost five members of last year's varsity, Miss Parks is building an entire new team around members of last
