What's a horse doing here?

Well, I'll tell you. Ever since I was a kid I've admired good horses. Made my living for years selling 'em. I think I know real values in horseflesh. Nothing thrills me like a thoroughbred animal, except these new we received last week.

Like a good horse

- They're beautiful
- They're sound
- They're easy to get along with
- They're dependable

They cost little to operate. Right there, they've got horses beat.

Drop in this week and see them. They have everything a housewife can want in a refrigerator — plus economy. Yours with the merchandise

THE LOW DOWN FROM HICKORY GROVE

Well folks, she looks like things are getting bettermaybe. Better than what, says Henry, answer me that. Well, I says, if you would read a little something once in a blue moon—and especially history -you would know that back there when the Roman Empire was big and chesty, it put on some whoppin' big shows, bigger even than the inauguration shindig we just put on there in Old Spendville-bythe-River, with 40 bands, etc.

But in Rome, for the main event they threw the slaves, and suckers, and prisoners, and taxpayers, and opposition Senators, to the lions. And looking at it from that angle, see how well off we are today. Now, today, a taxpayer is not tossed into the arena to be nibbled on-he is just called in by the high and mighty income tax gent, and, after being disrobed, almost, is turned loose with just enough dinero in his jeans to get him through another year. Then, he is called back and plucked again. So you see, I says, there is progress. You don't lose all your hide, complete—like in the lion arena—you just lose your mazuma and your liber-

But one more word—if Uncle Harry gets all the cash to spend that he is asking for-40,000 million—then I cannot guarantee that Mr. Taxpayer's hide will be any more safe than back there under Nero and the other high steppin' tax-exempt boys that took over, in Rome.

Yours with the low-down, JO SERRA
