YOU KNOW ME BY Al, Himself

Every once in a while we get magnanimous. This week we are going to give you some pointers on how to be an amateur gardener on a salary of not more than $5,000 a year.

First: Even at that salary, you must forget money when buying plants, bulbs, seeds, etc., so when you turn over almost a ten spot for six flats of flower plants that will just fill your front garden and cause persons to stop and say "a-h-h" long enough so you may invite them to the back lot, just forget the ten dollars.

Those who never play poker, or never take their family out to dinner, should join a mechanics' union of some kind.

In passing, we could advise you that if you get a job with a firm that pensions its workers, then you are all set to start a garden on a salary of $5,000 a year.

Second: (this is for men only) you must have a wife who is not interested in the garden until it gets to the "a-h-h" stage.
