

FARM TOPICS

Dig Up Flowering Bulbs—If flowering bulbs have not been dug after the foliage has turned yellow or withered, they should be lifted without delay (in early summer), separated into sizes, and stored in a dry place for several days. The bulbs may be kept in small wooden berry boxes or in flats with fine mesh wire on the bottoms for air circulation.

Farm Repair Centers—Not much equipment or space is needed to organize a useful farm repair center. Time spent in sharpening and repairing tools, and in overhauling other equipment will be saved many times over when they are in use during the busy summer season.

Flower Growers to Meet—All men in the florist industry in the State have been invited to attend the annual Flower Growers Conference July 19 and 21 at the Pennsylvania State College. Rooms in college dormitories will be available.

Cut Annuals Regularly—Cut annuals in the garden regularly to induce them to bloom. If seed is collected, store it in small, well-marked envelopes.

Fertilize Peonies—Peonies and delphiniums need a 3-12-6 commercial fertilizer. Avoid high nitrogenous fertilizers for these plants. All flowering peony stalks should be cut off unless seed is desired.

Soon Round-up Time—Club, county, and district 4-H round-ups start during the summer and continue through the Fall. Allen L. Baker, State 4-H leader, the Pennsylvania State College, says club members already have started grooming their dairy and livestock projects.

Wear Masks for Safety—Operators of spraying and dusting equipment should wear masks for safety.

Hot Weather Tip—Give farm animals ample fresh water and shade.

Lady Rebekahs Enjoy Party at Fire Hall

on low feed cost!

For example a Delaware producer reports only 2.80 pounds of Beacon feed required for each pound of meat at 12 weeks.

He writes: "We sold 5,392 birds from our flock of 5,600 and our pounds of feed were 2.80 for each pound of meat. This was done on Beacon Complete Starter and Broiler Feed."

Beacon Broiler Feed is a fast growing feed which helps you produce premium birds FASTER.
