SHAVER'S NEW PUPPY, FATTENED ON BOTTLE, NOW TAKES TO HAMBURG

There was rejoicing in the Claude Shaver household Monday when their five-week old Pomeranian pup refused her bottle and began to munch hamburgs and shredded wheat.

The puppy's mother, pedigreed "Koko" owned by Carl Shaver became ill just after the baby's birth and was unable to feed her. Grandma Shaver, quickly rising to the occasion, telephoned to bring mother and baby up from Boundbrook, N.J. pronto, and she'd try her luck with medicine dropper and bottle. The puppy—not the Shavers—thrived on the midnight and early morning feedings.

Now a fluffy ball of mischief that howls fretfully when she gets her bottom wet in a dish of evaporated milk, the pup has graduated to a diet of mixed vegetables and meat—the delight of the entire household!
