Helen Williamson's Article Published

Pennsylvania School Journal, official publication of the Pennsylvania State Educational Association, has for its lead article in the October issue, "Pennsylvania Folklore Stirs Interest in History in Elementary Schools," written by Helen C. Williamson, former Kingston Township and Noxen grade school teacher, who is now an instructor at the Friends School, Philadelphia.

The cover of the October issue was also suggested by Miss Williamson and has a Pennsylvania Dusch motif. Miss Williamson is a graduate of the University of Chicago and has many local connections spending a part of each year here.

Curve Collects Another Wreck

had spent the weekend making the rounds of the Lake drinking places. Besecker gave it as his considered opinion that most accidents on the curve have occurred as a result of drinking, or too much speed.

Of the four passengers in the car, Mrs. John Aleknanavick was taken to Nesbitt Hospital with possible injuries, but immediately discharged. John Aleknanavick, Ruth Stogoski, and Janet Morgans, none of them acquainted with Benner, were shaken but intact.

Let us add new springs, better stuffing and you will be amazed.

The older the furniture, the better job we do—and costs so little.

Book Club Holds Treasure Show

Items Range From Silver To Flags

Back Mountain Book Club treasure-show Wednesday afternoon featured a quilt in Rose of Sharon pattern dating from 1840, three ancient pottery lamps from before the time of Christ, a family Bible dating from the early eighteenth century, a breadboard in constant daily use for one hundred and nineteen years, and a geography which states that "Pennsylvania is a large healthy, and fertile state". Almost all of the members and some of the guests brought exhibits and told about them briefly. The exhibits ranged from hand-woven linen sheets to a thirteen-star flag, taking in china and silverware, hand carving and samplers, hooked rugs and Ming bowls.

Present were: Mesdames W. H. Derolf, E. V. Hartman, Robert D. Currie, Fred Howell, Fred Paget, Harold Flack, Charles E. Gates, Z. E. Garinger, James C. Langdon, Lewis W.
