Miss Mary Elizabeth Day Becomes Bride Of William Murray Morley

At a very pretty wedding, Miss Mary Elizabeth Day, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Asa Day of Terrace street, became the bride of William Murray Morley, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Drew Morley of Abington, Pa., in Dallas Methodist Church yesterday at 4 p. m. Rev. Frederick Reinfurt performed the double ring ceremony before an altar banked with white spring flowers and ferns.

Mrs. Ruth Turn Reynolds, organist, played the "Wedding March," "Because" and "The Wedding Prayer" ("O Perfect Love").

Maid of honor was Miss Diana Ellison, New York City, former classmate of the bride at Mt. Holyoke College. Bridesmaids were Sara Frances and Julia Clay Briggs, twin cousins of the bride of Valdosta, Ga., Mrs. Asa Day Jr. of Conyngham and Mrs. J. Houston Day of Shavertown. Flower girl was Susan Elizabeth Day, niece of the bride, and ring bearer, J. Houston Day Jr., nephew of the bride.

Best man was William Murray Morley, father of the bridegroom. J. Houston Day, Asa Day Jr. and Alan Day, James Schierloh of Hackensack, N. J. and Frank Murray of Montclair, N. J. acted as ushers.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, was attractive in white organdie gown fashioned with tight bodice, long full skirt and off the shoulder neckline. She wore a bolero jacket with long tight sleeves. Her heart shaped head-dress was of organdie and she carried a white prayer book marked with white orchid.

Miss Ellison chose yellow organdie over taffeta made with tight cotton lace bodice, full skirt and short jacket. Bridesmaids selected green organdie similarly made. All wore matching horsehair picture hats and carried nosegays of spring flowers with purple shades predominating.

Little Susan Elizabeth was cun-ning in white organdie embroidered in pastel shades and matching nosegay, and J. Houston Day Jr. in short white suit. He carried a black velvet pillow.

Mrs. Day, mother of the bride, wore powder blue lace dress, floor length, with matching maleine hat and yellow carnations, and Mrs. Morley beige lace with natural straw hat and green orchids.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the home of the bride.

Mrs. Morley attended Moravian Seminary and graduated from Newton, Mass., High School. She was graduated from Bucknell University on June 10. Mr. Morley was graduated from Philadelphia Central High School and will receive his degree at Lehigh University on Monday.

The couple will live at Jeannette, Pa. where Mr. Morley has accepted a position with the Elliott Engineers.
