Hemelright Award

The committee which will select the Back Mountain citizen who will receive this year's Hemelright Award will meet Monday night at 8 at Prince of Peace Church. Five representatives from each civic, religious and fraternal organization in the area will take part in the balloting.

Stern Warning

Burgess H. A. Smith, Borough Officials and Chief Russell Honeywell of the Borough Police this week issued a sharp warning to parents that they will be arrested and prosecuted if their children are caught engaged in malicious mischief, waxing cars, destroying property or molesting aged persons.

Already considerable damage has been done, windows and yard lamps broken and cars coated with wax that is impossible to remove without damaging the finish.

Last year during the height of the annual Hallowe'en Parade a group of vandals created havoc on Machell Avenue where those who had contributed to the parade and its refreshments had gone to witness it.

Parents who do not know or care where their children are or what they are doing during the next week and a half may find themselves in an embarrassing situation for much of the damage done in the Borough cannot be classed as child's play.

Amos Kitchen Passes Away

Son Of Pioneer Joins Forefathers

Funeral services will be held for Amos Kitchen at Alderson Methodist Church tomorrow afternoon at two, following private services at the family home at 1:30, both conducted by Rev. Ruth Underwood and Rev. David Morgan. Burial will be made in Lakeview Cemetery, where he will lie with his pioneer forefathers.

Amos Kitchen was nearing eighty four when he succumbed to increasing cardiac trouble. He had struggled to rise above physical limitations, but on Monday was taken to the Nesbitt Hospital, where he died early Wednesday morning.

Mr. Kitchen, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Kitchen, had lived at Harveys Lake all his life. He is of pioneer stock dating back 110 years to the time when Jesse Kitchen, his grandfather, newly arrived from England, settled at Harveys Lake after a brief stay in New Jersey.

The first burial in what is now Lakeview Cemetery, part of the original Kitchen acreage, was that of Jesse, who lies in the shade of a huge double cedar. Jesse's offspring intermarried with Montrosses and Casebiers, all early settlers.

Mrs. Amos Kitchen, the former Margaret Oplinger, died in 1940. Surviving are eight children: Arthur, Mountain Springs; Mrs. Leonard Davis, Edmeston, N. Y.; Mrs. Clarence Leas, and Marvin, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. Frank Kuddy, Philadelphia; Mrs. Garwin Smith, Harveys Lake; Marjorie, Forty Fort; Glenn, Weatherly; eight grandchildren and six great grandchildren; a brother, Walter, Idetown; and a sister, Mrs. Harriet Rauch, Harveys Lake.

Increasingly blind from glaucoma for the past fifteen years, and totally so for the past seven, Mr. Kitchen nonetheless was able to go fishing and managed to do a great deal of his own work. Though feeling in very ill health this summer, he went fishing twice, once at Mountain Springs with his son Arthur.

Folks who attended the Back Mountain Library Auction in 1950 will recall seeing Mr. Kitchen on the front row. He could not see the auctioneer but enjoyed the excitement and the crowd, bidding briskly on a refrigerator.

Before retirement, Mr. Kitchen was a contractor, building many of the houses at Harveys Lake. He was part owner and builder of Fernbrook Amusement Park.

In his final illness, before removal to the hospital, he was attended by his daughter, Mrs. Garwin Smith, who lives conveniently close at hand.

Clifford Davis Takes Over Shaver Station

Clifford H. (Bud) Davis of Idetown has taken over the service station business formerly operated by Dean Shaver. Mr. Davis expects to handle a complete line of Atlantic and Firestone products, home appliances and sporting goods.

Mr. Davis was formerly employed by the M & G. Convoy Company out of Buffalo. From November 1942 until December 1945 he was in the armed forces serving with the 20th Air Force in the Pacific area.

He is a graduate of Lehman High School and is married to the former Naomi Smith. They have two children.

Democrats Elect Clark Chairman

By Unanimous Vote At Party Meeting

The local Democratic Policy Committee, at a meeting Wednesday night, unanimously elected Don Clark, Lehman Avenue, chairman of Dallas Borough Democratic Party.

Mr. Clark, in accepting the honor, said: "Citizens of Dallas Borough will be assured of candidates in the future who are elected at the Primaries, and not at a session held behind closed doors."

"By this means and this alone can we hope to preserve the American Way of Life and protect good government."

"It is time for a change, for constructive ideas, for a more democratic government, for recognition of minorities." And he further added,

"Our candidates are just Americans."
