Hook-Shot Specialist

CHUCK MRAZOVICH

Back Mountain basketball fans will have a second opportunity to watch the Wilkes-Barre Barons in action this week when the local pros engage the New York Yankees from Saratoga Springs, N. Y. tonight at the West Side Armory.

Wednesday night the Back Mountain was well represented at the West Side Armory for the Wilkes-Barre-Elmira contest with players from Back Mountain school squads the guests of Manager-Coach Eddie White, John Feach, and Elmer Kotalik, owners of the Wilkes-Barre club.

Tonight the Barons will have Chuck Mrazovich, the hook-shot specialist again ready for action along with starters Earl Hawkins, Joe "Bells" Colone, Ray Corley, and Jim Cathcart.

Mrazovich is a native of Ambridge, Pa. and gained All-Conference honors for four successive years as a member of the Kentucky College quintet.

The Barons travel tomorrow night (Saturday) and return to the West Side Armory for a game the night after Christmas with the league-leading Washington Capitols.

Commonwealth Company Files New Tariff

H. G. Payne, Vice-President and General Manager of the Commonwealth Telephone Company with general offices at Forty Fort, has announced that a new tariff was filed with the Pennsylvania Public Utility Commission on December 11, to become effective February 11.

The new tariff was filed for the purpose of combining tariffs of predecessor companies, including the Orangeville Rural Telephone Company, Bradford County Telephone Company and Luzerne Telephone Company, and also to make rates for miscellaneous services and equipment uniform throughout the entire territory served by Commonwealth Telephone Company. This is not a general rate revision inasmuch as no rates for local service are being changed at this time.

Public telephone rates for local calls are being increased from 5c to 10c, which is in conformity with generally accepted telephone practice, in order that the public telephone users will be charged for the use of service on a more equitable basis in comparison with regular subscribers.

Butchering Time In Rural Areas

Home butchering time is fast approaching for Pennsylvania farm families.

Chickens in 1950 took fifth place with a value of about $5,800,000, or $500,000 less than in 1949.

Kettles, knives, benches, sausage grinders and stuffers, firewood pots and pans are being gathered together and put in condition for the butchering that come usually between Thanksgiving and Christmas along with real cold, snappy weather.

Fall crop harvesting are about completed and attention to the winter supply of pork and beef now is taking top place among things to be done on most Pennsylvania farms, the State Department of Agriculture reports.

In many farming areas of the State it is still customary for family members for miles around to gather for big butchering at one farm after another until the round is made and every family has completed the task.

Increased interest in farm butchering for home use has been taken in recent years with the development of deep freeze and other refrigeration units whereby large amounts of meat can be held, officials said. In spite of this, there was a drop from third to fourth place last year in the value of hogs held for consumption on the farm where grown, recent Federal-State surveys disclose. Eggs consumed were higher in value than hogs and went into third place. The decline was due in part to a more plentiful supply of hogs and slightly lower prices, observers said.

The survey also disclosed that farm families consume a greater value of dairy products—milk, cheese and butter—than any other foods produced on their own farms.

For the past two years this value has been approximately $20,000,000. Truck crops came second with a value of over $15,000,000 in 1950. Last year eggs ranked third with a value of approximately $9,700,000 and hogs fourth at close to $9,000,000, a drop from $11,600,000
