Jane Coolbaugh Becomes Bride Of Donald Britt On Saturday

Jane Coolbaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Laing Coolbaugh of Trucksville R. D., became the bride of Donald Britt, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Britt of Hunlock Creek Saturday afternoon at 2 p. m. Rev. Robert Webster performed the double ring ceremony in Trucksville Methodist Church before an altar banked with white gladioli and palms.

Mrs. William Blackman played the wedding music and Kenneth Evans sang "Because" and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore white taffeta gown styled with tight bodice, full skirt and mandarin neckline. Her finger tip veil of French illusion fell from a half hat trimmed with nylon flowers, and seed pearls. Her long tight sleeves were pointed at the wrists and she carried a Colonial bouquet of white roses and carnations.

Mrs. Richard Plummer of Philadelphia was her sister's matron of honor. She selected rose taffeta made with tight bodice and full skirt, short sleeves and portrait neckline. She too wore a half hat

Alaska Is A Long Way From Dallas, But Rose Mary Thinks Nothing Of It

It will take Mrs. Albert L. Morse and Rose Mary sixteen hours to reach Anchorage, Alaska, from Idlewild Airport, New York, this weekend. Added to this there is the forty-five minute trip from Avoca, starting Saturday afternoon at 4:09, and a wait at Idlewild until 8 p. m.

Jane, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Post, Dallas, had not expected to join her husband, Lt. Lt. Albert Morse, until June, but when a small house became available in a good residential area near the radar installation at Elmendorf Field, Anchorage, her plans were speeded up.

She starts with her six-months old baby girl Rose Mary tomorrow afternoon.

Her mother, with whom she has been staying since February 1 when her husband started for Alaska, will accompany her to New York on the first leg of the transcontinental trip, but will not be able to see the big stratocruiser take the air, as her own plane back to Avoca leaves at 7:15.

Airborne at 8 p. m., the liner lands in Seattle at 7:12 Sunday morning, shortly before another plane takes off for Alaska. The wait is less than an hour, but with luck Mrs. Morse will see some of the camellia trees for which Seattle is famous, in full bloom at this time of year.

At 12:10, four hours after taking off, the plane will reach Anchorage.

The house is furnished, but bedding and certain other supplies have to be provided. After Mrs. Morse had accumulated everything she couldn't get along without, she estimated the cost of sending the 412 pounds by air freight did a double-take, and called the Back Mountain Lumber Company to build crates for rail freight.

Crates to travel that distance have to be heavy, probably adding up to as much poundage as the freight itself. There is a transfer in Seattle, with freight going on to Alaska via steamship along the inland passage.

Alaska is a goodish step from Dallas, but the young Morses are used to it.

Married in 1944, they have lived all over the country except the far west, first when Al was still a cadet, and during this past year since he was recalled to service.

In 1944 it was Camden, South Carolina, with orders for overseas duty continually threatening.

Then it was Shavertown, on Orchard Street, during the time Lt. Morse was a student at Wilkes and later employed by the Anthracite Tile and Marble Works, West Pittston.

During the past year it has been San Antonio, where the young couple lived in a motel; Biloxi, where they had a beautiful new 30 foot Schult trailer with all conveniences; and Waverly, Iowa, where the same trailer accommodated them.

By this time, something new had been added, and Rose Mary was an established member of the family.

The baby was born in Biloxi. With three people in the trailer, quarters were a bit tight, even with a separate bedroom and efficiency arrangements. Mrs. Morse says that the diaper-drying problem was a staggering one in wet weather.

Harvey's Lake Lions Dine Fathers-Sons

Harveys Lake Lions held their third annual Father-Son banquet at Herman Kern's Wednesday evening, with nearly 100 present.

Chairmen were Carl Swanson and Dick Williams.

Glenn Spencer, Idetown, entertained with his dancing doll, and the Kavanaugh Twins danced. Richard Goodall, 8, from Wilkes-Barre, sang and danced.

THE ROBINS ARE HERE, BLUE-BIRDS IN FLOCKS AND JUICY ANGLEWORMS

It takes Frank Jackson to turn up a whole flock of robins and match the discovery with a flock of blue-birds, while everybody else is phoning the Post about one lone robin and one bluebird.

Frank saw both flocks, twenty or thirty bluebirds at Idetown, fat robins at Alderson, Wednesday morning at 9.

And he has an Aconite plant in bloom since March 1. It's Dave Deater, Harveys Lake, who reported the angle worms.

Ruth Deal down in Fernbrook, has reported a robin, and David Estus a star bird-watcher at 9 has seen both a robin and a blue-bird.
