

Don Evans Answers The Question Why Is There A Hemelright Award?

The Frank H. Hemelright Memorial Award, given each year to the man or woman in the Back Mountain who has given outstanding community service, will be formally presented to this year's winner at Irem Temple Country Club on Wednesday evening, October 8th.

Kenneth Rice, president of Dallas Kiwanis has announced that members of Kiwanis will be host at a combined dinner meeting of Dallas Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs. Miss Mary Weir, general chairman of the Frank H. Hemelright Memorial Award Committee, will make formal presentation of the award.

Frank H. Hemelright, late of Monroe Township, had an epic career, which may be favorably compared to that of a Horatio Alger hero. Born in humble surroundings, Mr. Hemelright was principally self educated and was known for his aptitude for hard work and perseverance. At the time of his death he had attained every goal he desired—an enviable character, respect of hundreds of friends, wealth, and the lasting gratitude of many young men and women whom he had benefited financially.

Mr. Hemelright was born in Beaumont, September, 1870, and passed away in January, 1930, at Scranton, where he had resided for many years. At the time of death, he was president of Peckville National Bank, and a director of the First National Bank, Scranton. He was a member of Keystone Utilities Company, and Sprague & Henwood, Inc., Scranton. His fraternal affiliations were Masonic organizations, Scranton Club, Engineers' Society of Pennsylvania, and the American Society of Engineers.

From humble mine labor at Luzerne, when a small boy, Mr. Hemelright rose through the ranks to become president of the Temple Coal Company.

It is notable that Mr. Hemelright put the Golden Rule into daily application in all his associations, and was foremost in accepting leadership in any worthwhile community improvement. He was intensely interested in youth, and was ever ready to be of assistance to any young man or woman who came to him for kindly counsel or financial help. The Frank H. Hemelright Award has been established by a donor, who, remaining anonymous, was one of the numerous young people who benefited from the Christian ideals so fully exemplified by Mr. Hemelright.
