Baby Is Victim Of Drowning

Hunlock Creek Child Is Buried Tuesday

Little Mary Hassaj, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Hassaj, Moon Lake, was buried in the parish cemetery, Dallas, Tuesday morning, after an Angel Mass at Sacred Heart Slovak Church.

Mary, eighteen months old, drowned Saturday night in a tub of water in her own yard, where she had stopped to paddle while the rest of the family, just back from a dip in the lake, went upstairs to change from bathing suits to dry clothing.

Artificial respiration administered by Dr. Rudolph Martin, summer resident from Nanticoke at Lake Silkworth, and Russell Thomas and Richard Morgan, Lehman Township police, proved futile. The child was pronounced dead of shock and drowning by Alfred Bronson, deputy coroner.

The baby was one of six children. The parents operate a farm on Hunlock Creek R. D. 2, not far from Lake Silkworth.

YMCA Da-Camp Holds Costume Parade

Shavertown was witness to an unscheduled parade on Friday morning when the YMCA Da-Camp held a costume parade through the main streets. Many people thought a circus had arrived over night, when they looked out of their homes and saw this splendid costume parade.

Some of the costumes were as follows: a walking grocery store, devil's suit, a little old lady, a scare crow, an angel, and a monkey. Winning first prize for the most original was David Austin, dressed as a store counter. Second prize went to Sue Anderson in an angel dress.

The Da-Camp will hold another parade during the second week period which started on Monday, July 13. Campers may still register for the last two week period starting on July 27.
