

With Kingston Dump Closed, It'll Cost More To Dispose Of Garbage

Housewives in Dallas Borough and Kingston Township are about to lose another round in their continuing battle with Old High Cost of Living, but this time the blows are coming from an unexpected direction.

Local garbage men, confronted with the closing of the Kingston Dump, say that garbage disposal costs will have to rise if they are forced to drive to Nanticoke or farther distance to dispose of their loads.

The Kingston Dump was closed this week because of protests of Kingston residents who have been forced for months to breathe the disgusting smoke from the smoldering garbage piles. Rats, too, have created a nuisance in their retreat from the fires.

Up until this week most of the garbage collected in Dallas Borough and Kingston Township was disposed of in Kingston.

Kingston Township no longer has any provision for garbage disposal. According to Arthur Smith, president of the Board of Supervisors, trucks abused the privilege at the former dumping ground, strewing debris in the roadway so that the owner of the property cancelled his contract with the Supervisors.

Dallas Borough has made some provision for disposal on the Bunney plot at Fernbrook; but only tin cans and clean ashes can be dumped there.

Dallas Township takes care of its citizens by providing a dumping ground on the Roushey Plot, but will not permit out of township trucks to leave garbage there.

Local garbage men are not certain where they will be able to dispose of their loads. "Maybe we can find a place in Nanticoke or Lake Township, but that will involve longer hauls," Don Smith said, "and that will involve increased costs to housewives."

"I don't know what we'll do," Kenneth Kocher said, "but we'll find some way out."

Norti Berti who has long agitated for adequate dumping facilities, said there ought to be some provision for dumping in the Back Mountain Region without hauling the stuff to Valley communities. "We're just passing the buck when we ask Kingston to solve our problems."

At any rate—it looks now as though Old High Cost of Living has won another round—and garbage disposal rates are going up!

Evelyn Williams Buried Thursday

Loyalville Native Dies Sunday At 80

Mrs. Evelyn Allen Williams, Cambra, died Sunday night at her home after a year's illness. She was buried in Lehman Cemetery Thursday afternoon following services conducted from the Bronson Funeral Home and Sweet Valley Church of Christ by Rev. E. J. Waterstrip.

Mrs. Williams, daughter of Fred and Lucinia Allen Eipper, was born in Loyalville in 1872, a graduate of Wyoming Seminary and Bloomsburg State Teachers College she taught school locally and in Nebraska for thirty-five years. Upon marriage to Nesbitt Williams, she lived in Loyalville until 1946, when the family moved to Cambra. She was a member of Sweet Valley Church of Christ, teaching the Bible Class until ill health prevented.

She is survived by her husband and two nieces, Mrs. Fred Fisher, Warrenville, and Mrs. Alice Woodside, Summit, N. J.

Mrs. Thomas Stephens, Carverton, Dies At 57

Following funeral services in Kingston this afternoon, Mrs. Thomas Stephens' body will be taken to Calicoon, N. Y. for burial. Rev. Robert Wood, pastor of Carverton Methodist Church, of which Mrs. Thomas was a member, will officiate.

Mrs. Stephens passed away at Nesbitt Hospital Tuesday afternoon.

Survivors include her widower, Thomas; a daughter, Mrs. Mary Southerner, Erie; a son, Thomas, Jersey City; one grandchild; two sisters and a brother, all of New York State.

Mrs. Stephens had lived in Carverton for twenty-five years, and was active in Methodist church affairs, a member of the Sunshine Class and WSOS. She belonged to Carverton Mountain Grange.

She had been ill for some time, requiring hospitalization. Realizing that she would not recover, she asked to be brought home. She was readmitted to Nesbitt Hospital the night before her death.

Carverton Wins Over E. Dallas

Carverton upset East Dallas with a sixteen hit attack and beautiful pitching by Andreko.

Carverton scored two runs in the second inning on a walk to Andreko, a hit by Brozena, and errors by East Dallas. The inning ended in a double play, Wilson to G. Brobst to C. Brobst.

Both teams rallied in the third inning to tie the game at six all. East Dallas runs came on a home run by Cusick with the bases full.

Carverton broke the tie with a single by Hunlock, a pass ball and a single by R. Parrish.

I thought his wife had enough babies of all kinds. His remarks were both funny and exasperating, but picture the black future ahead in his mind: only 3 girls to help their mother work the gardens to feed that mob of men; 8 wives to pay for and only 3 to be paid for. That on top of almost having been left with all those 11 on his hands alone.

"If fathers at home think it's rough having babies, they should think of this poor man. It's a wonder we didn't lose HIM!"

"I'm staying in with a cold this weekend. A terrific rain broke into dry season last night. We give exams next week. Conference is June 22 at Minga. Mrs. Larsen is waiting for her 5th baby momentarily.
