Ruth White AAGO To Give Recital

Scranton Organist, Featured On Sunday

Ruth A. White, A.A.G.O., organist of the Green Ridge Presbyterian Church of Scranton, will give the second in a series of four organ recitals being sponsored by the Senior Choir of St. Clement's Episcopal Church, at St. Clement's Church, Hanover St., Wilkes-Barre, Sunday at 4:00 p.m.

Miss White is not only a teacher and composer, but has done considerable recital work throughout the East. Recently, she was the featured artist at the Spring Music Festival at Pennsylvania State College.

The organ at St. Clement's has recently been re-designed by Henry Johnson of Luzerne and rebuilt by the S. G. Bullions Company of West Pittston, some of the work being done by the Acolian-Skinner Company of Boston, Mass. It is in the "small organ class" but, because of the excellent voicing of the pipes, and the comprehensive choice of the number of pipe-ranks, it is completely adequate for all schools of organ literature.

The recitals are being given to demonstrate the fine results that can be obtained in a re-built job, at a comparatively low cost. The organ at St. Clement's is not "finished"—probably never will be, as Mr. Johnson, who is a Vestryman at St. Clement's, will always have an interest in making it a more noble instrument. At present, the pedal organ is the most in need of change. The offering received at these recitals, after expenses have been met, will be added to the Organ Fund for future improvements.

The public is invited to attend the recital and examine the organ afterward, with Mr. Johnson, available, for answering questions.
