HOWARD WHITESELL

Whitesell Is Success At 29

Well-Known Builder Started When A Boy

Howard Whitesell does not wholeheartedly recommend to the rising generation that they follow his recipe for success, but it worked for Howard, and prospective businessmen might well follow his example in buckling down to something constructive at the age of fourteen, even if they don't leave school in order to do it.

Howard, after two years of high school at Harveys Lake, decided that school was not for him, and signed himself up as an apprentice carpenter with his uncle, William Whitesell, a Kingston contractor. This move laid the foundation for the present construction program, which has seen Whitesell Brothers building upwards of 150 houses in an area embracing Bear Creek, Mountain Top, North Lake, Nanticoke, Harveys Lake, Dallas, Shavertown, and Lehman.

The present project at Oak Hill, a ninety-acre development near Idetown, already has thirty-two completed houses, with a dozen more in the building. The goal is the best house that can be built with a moderate investment, quality not sacrificed to quantity production.

The supply store at the turnoff where Route 115 leaves the Harveys Lake highway, was a natural development. Howard and Elwood needed convenient headquarters. Alan Kittle manages the yard, Howard buys and sells. Elwood checks on the building program, but most of the jobs overlap.

It all started when Howard found he did not care for farming, but preferred to work with wood. The farm that he had bought at Pikes Creek after his return from the South Pacific, found a ready sale to his father, George Whitesell. A barn on the property lent itself to remodeling for a wood-working shop, and Howard, Elwood, and George started to turn out moldings and other interior strip and general millwork. One thing leading to another, and carpentering being in the family blood, the next step to actual building and eventually to contracting was completely logical.

Howard was already a carpenter, a member of the AF of L after serving his four years apprenticeship with his uncle. Almost immediately after getting his credentials, Pearl Harbor broke loose, and Howard, Elwood, and their cousin Willard Shaver joined the Marines, training at Parris Island. Until 1945, the scene changed from Pennsylvania to the South Pacific, with first-wave assault landings at Guadalcanal, Cape Gloucester, Peleleu. Howard rose from private to staff sergeant and developed an abiding hate for tropical islands.

Before his discharge, he married the former Dorothy Harmon of Dallas. The couple has two boys, Gary, 8, and Ronald, 5. After selling the farm, he built his present home on Fernbrook Road.

There isn't too much time for recreation in a schedule as tight as that maintained by the Whitesell brothers, but Howard gets up to Canada in the spring for a ten day trek into the lake region above Quebec during trout season, and Elwood breaks away later in the summer for bass. The first day of rabbit hunting finds Howard afield for small game.

Vital statistics show him born June 8, 1924, at General Hospital, his parents George and Bessie Whitesell, then living in Forty Fort. When he was four years old the family moved to Oklahoma City, moved back to Pennsylvania and settled at Pikes Creek when he was six, just in time to launch him in the first grade in a one-room school house after kindergarten experience in Oklahoma. Until he was twelve years old he attended this school, going to Laketon school for the two years mentioned.

Not many young men of twenty-nine have accomplished as much in this area. His success reflects credit upon his forebears, upon his own initiative, and doubtless upon the down to earth education received in the one-room school.

In California a car driven by Thomas Coffey collided with that of Ben Pott. No grounds, no arrests.

Annual Easter Egg Hunt Is Slated For April 17 At Westmoreland

Police of Kingston Township started March 1 to solicit funds from local merchants to finance the annual Easter Egg Hunt on Westmoreland High School grounds scheduled this year for April 17. Parents will be asked in years past to hard-boil and dye as many eggs as possible for the event. And again, baskets will be prepared for crippled children and shut-ins.

On the committee are Arthur F. Smith, Chief Jesse Coslett, Patrolman Herbert Updyke. Supplementary police will assist in keeping order at the egg hunt and distributing prizes. Pre-school children will have a section of their own, smaller grade school children another section. Eggs for older children will be hidden in more inaccessible spots, and no infringing upon small children's territory will be permitted.

Last year 1500 children were accommodated.

Susquehanna Breeders To See Local Holsteins

Next Thursday the Susquehanna Holstein Club will visit the Sanddale herd of Holsteins at Carverton and Hillside Farms Inc., at Trucksville.

The Susquehanna County Club is an up and coming Association doing an excellent job of breeding and promoting top quality cattle.

It is with a great deal of pleasure that Sanddale and Hillside Farms welcome and show the Susquehanna breeders their Holsteins. We are justly proud of our Holsteins. Hillside Farms is one of the oldest breeders of Holsteins in the state and Ralph Sands is one of the younger progressive breeders.

When money talks these days, it's probably asking what happened.

There is not much collective security in a flock of sheep on the way to the butcher.

News Of The Birds

Already the Robin has become commonplace in our area, but there are some newcomers that are not as plentiful. The Fox Sparrow was first reported by Frank Jackson several weeks ago, and recently it was seen in Lehman. White Throated Sparrows have been seen in Forty Fort. I have not heard of any visiting Dallas, but more than likely they are here. The Mourning Doves have been in Dallas for several weeks as well as the Purple Finches. It is interesting to note that the Mourning Dove is one of the few birds that is known to nest in every state in the Union. In the open fields the newcomers include the Killdeer, the Horned Lark and the Woodcock.

It is a wonderful time to go afield. The winter birds have not yet departed, and some of the earlier migrants are already here, adding spice to one's field trip. If you have ever seen a Coot, and care to, you may see a pair at Smith's Pond in Jackson Township.
