

Mrs. Addie Ryman Austin, Marks Ninetieth Birthday With Family

Mrs. Addie Ryman Austin was entertained at a family dinner Wednesday evening, marking her ninetieth birthday. Mrs. Clyde Eggleston of Vernon was the hostess for her mother, and Mr. and Mrs. Arch Austin of Beaumont, guests.

Mrs. Austin is not quite so vigorous now as she was when she ventured into the wilds of Canada at the age of seventy-seven to fish with her son Arch in the wilderness, but she still reads without her glasses, and remembers with delight that she once drove the fastest horses ever seen in these parts.

She was born on what was once Ryman's Pond, now Lake Catalpa. Her forebears on the Ryman side came from Prussia at about the time of the Revolution, on the Spencer side from England earlier in the century. Peter and Richard, grandfather and father, were tremendously tall men, capable of dealing with the virgin forest as pioneer timbermen.

Christened Frances Adelaide Ryman, little Addie attended a one-room school near Demunds, and later the Beaumont Academy.

Living on the Penn Kirkendall farm in Kunkle, now the Morrett place, for many years before she and her husband William bought the present farm in Plattsburg, Mrs. Austin learned how to cope with necessity in days when cars were unknown and doctors were unavailable in time of emergency. When her elder son, E. Ray Austin, was nearly drowned in the pond, it was Mrs. Austin who rolled him on a barrel, working over him for hours after his cousin Lawrence pulled him to shore. Lawrence won a Carnegie medal and four years at Ames College for his exploit. Mrs. Austin had the satisfaction of seeing her son grow up to be an educator, superintendent of Laurel Run Schools for thirty-five years before his death in January, 1954.

The younger son, Arch, is supervising principal of Monroe Township schools, the subject of a Know-Your-Neighbor column in the Dallas Post three years ago.

William Austin died in 1927, but Mrs. Austin still lives on the place in Plattsburg, though tenants now work the farm.

Charles J. Glasser, 83, Lies At Mt. Greenwood

Charles J. Glasser, native of Wilkes-Barre and former resident of Dallas, was buried in Mt. Greenwood Cemetery Wednesday afternoon, services conducted by Rev. William Heapps.

Mr. Glasser, 83, died Monday morning at the Ransom Home, where he had been a patient since June, 1953. He was a carpenter by trade, a member of Sons of Veterans of G. A. R., Wilkes-Barre. A veteran of the Spanish-American War, he played in the fife and drum corps of the old Alexander Ninth Regiment Band.

The Fine Art of the Apothecary Has Not Been Lost

THE OLD APOTHECARY of other years was a mysterious and romantic figure. Under his magic influence, roots, herbs, and minerals were turned into pills, extracts, and plasters. The doctor's prescriptions were filled, the patient's health and comfort restored. Although much of the mystery with which he was surrounded has vanished, the fine art of the apothecary has not been lost. A visit to our prescription department will convince the most skeptical that his function is an important adjunct to modern medical practice. When you find it necessary to consult a physician, bring your prescriptions to us to be filled.
