BACK MOUNTAIN Checkerboard News

by Jim Huston Jr.

HUSTON'S FEED SERVICE, Fernbrook

After a delay of two months this column has finally become a reality. We want this column to be your column. We want to let you know about your neighbors successes on the Purina Plan, and drop a hint or two which may help you with your particular livestock problem.

STILL IN A CAST

I'm still not able to get out to see you folks as we had planned, but the doctor says my back is healing nicely and should be good as new in due time. Meanwhile, we'll be depending on you to "bring in the news"—feeding results, ribbons and championships won, or any tips which you think might help your neighbors in farming.

WATCH HEAT, VENTILATION

in raising chicks. Temperature in brooder house should be 90 degrees 1st week, should be reduced 5 degrees per week until down to 60 degrees if possible.

Fresh air without drafts is essential for growth and development and for best operation of brooders.

GREEN GRASS IS NOT ENOUGH

The cow in this illustration is milking herself into the pail. This often happens in the spring when grass is tender and juicy. Cows like it, but because of its high water content, they can't eat enough grass to supply nutrients for their body and production.

Sure production increases; new grass is highly stimulating. But she's producing at body expense. Then when summer rolls round, already down in body weight, she begins her "summer slump" in milk. So don't rob your cows... keep 'em on a good Purina milking ration.

FREE!

Ask for our free booklet on growing calves next time you're in the store. It tells how to raise good calves and sell all the milk once fed to calves, too! Also offers practical plans for building a calf barn, troughs, hay racks.

HEALTH HINT

Fight disease from the start.

Chicks must have plenty of clean, fresh water before them at all times. Here's what they need:

Day old to 3 weeks } One 1 gal. fount per 100 chicks
3 weeks to 6 weeks } One 3 gal. fount per 100 chicks

Kill common germs in water with Chek-R-Tabs. Use 1 Tab per quart of water for first 4 weeks. Helps prevent spread of disease through water.

Homer Weiss of the Curtis Farm, Lehman, was a welcome visitor the other day. Homer had just returned home from the hospital but looked fit as a fiddle. We're also glad to welcome Lansford Norris of Chase and Delbert Garinger of Demunds back home after illness and injury.
