

Committee Lists Recent Books

Selections by the Book Committee for shelves of the Book Club at Back Mountain Memorial Library, include a book which is condensed in the June issue of Readers Digest, "Of Whales and Men." Fascinating enough in its shortened version, it is extremely readable in the original, with more action in it than a novel. It bears out that old saying, "Truth is stranger than Fiction."

Other non-fiction books are: "Laughter on the Stairs," by Beverly Nichols; "Born on Snowshoes," by Evelyn Berglund Shore, a story of the Arctic; "Minutes of the Last Meeting," Gene Fowler; "The Gentle House," Anna Perrott Rose.

"I was a House Detective," by Dev. Collins, completes the non-fiction list. Guests don't get away with a thing. That towel in your suitcase, wrapped around your wet shaving brush, appears on your bill whether you know it or not. And if you don't lock your door you're asking for trouble.

There is a Mystery by Patricia Wentworth, "The Silent Pool."

Eleven books of fiction, designed for summer reading, include two historical novels: "The Spider King," by Laurence Schoonover, with French background, and "India Allen," by Elizabeth B. Kocher, old Charleston.

Rather serious is a novel about the coming age of young minister, "Not by the Door," by James B. Hall. "Bhowani Junction," by John Masters, is a novel of India.

"The Newcomer" is by Clyde Brion Davis. "Don't You Cry for Me," Mary Frech Rosborough. "Fabulous Ancestor," Donald Demarest. "The Spirit and the Clay" by Shevawn Lynam.

"Gypsy in the Parlor," Margery Sharp. "Invitation from Minerva" March Cost. "Ghost Town Bonanza," Rosemary Taylor.

Biographies include "The Taft Story," by William S. White; "Royal Family" by Pierre Berton; and "Clown" by Emmett Kelly.
