HERE AND THERE

Then there was the farmer who was approached by an eager young salesman and asked to buy a set of books on "How To Farm Successfully." The farmer listened to the sales talk, then said, "Son, I don't need those books. I ain't farming half as well now as I know how!"

There are two million more women than men in the U. S. (Run for the hills, boys!)

We Americans spent 67 billion dollars for food in 1953.

Retired Navy Officer Explains Rescue At Sea To Explorer Scouts

Explorer Scouts who found it too hot a night to attend the meeting at Dallas Borough Building a week ago Monday night, missed an exceptional talk by Louis Kelly, retired Navy flier.

Lou explained graphically how a helicopter can hover over a man floating in the water or in a life raft, back up, move to one side or the other, and compensate for the extra weight of the rescued man dangling at the end of a cable by slowly increasing throttle pressure.

Lou's helicopter operated in Korea, two weeks before retiring, Lou completed a rescue test on land, then found himself called to assist with rescue by sea, and picked up a man floating off San Diego. Such rescues, he explained, are under the jurisdiction of the Coast Guard, all vessels or planes assisting reporting direct to the first Coast Guard vessel to arrive on the scene.

Lieutenant Kelly was attached to the Carrier Valley Forge during the Korean war. He showed pictures of the carrier, his own and other helicopters, and of rescues. One picture showed Kelly himself as the victim, after his helicopter crashed in the sea.

A film showing rescue by un-sinkable aluminum boat dropped by parachute from a rescue plane, shown by the Air Force Reserve, showed everything in the small craft, including concentrated food, dry clothing, first aid supplies, with a motor to propel the odd looking boat with its high free-board and protected bow and stern. The three solar stills seen floating behind the life-raft used by the castaways before rescue came in for much attention. Lou explained that the heat of the sun evaporated sea water, which condensed into fresh water fit for drinking.

Donald Naylor, Wayside Duck Farm, heard that the Dallas Post is a clearing-house of information. So when he needed two kittens to raise for raters, he called Dallas 4-5656. Sure enough, two kittens had been going begging over at Miss Louise Thomas's in Huntsville. Miss Thomas had called last week to say somebody had dropped them off, that they were awfully cute, but that she couldn't keep them because she was going on a vacation. As for the Wayside Duck Farm, no more kittens need apply.

Goes To Germany

CARL T. HEDDEN

Carl T. Hedden, son of Mr. and Mrs. Raymon Hedden, Dallas, left for Germany Saturday, sailing on the Seven Seas in company of 1250 students. They expect to return September 13 on the same ship, after spending two days in Paris on the way home.

Carl is one of a group of 367 students, boys and girls, 16 and 17 years old, who will be located in German homes as guests of the families, arranged for and by the American Field Service. Carl will be in a suburb of Dusseldorf. During his summer visit, he expects to make a trip to the Italian Alps with his host, Claus Griese, a boy of his own age.

A number of student groups made up the ships company. World Council of Churches accounted for 100 students, a working group. Experiment in International Living accounted for 100 more. Small college groups from many colleges sailed together. Another boy from Deerfield Academy where Carl will start his senior year in September, was included, but in another classification.

Carl has known since mid-March that his application had been accepted. Boys pay their expenses en route and for side trips and extras, but are guests of the families where they are quartered, as in the case of the French students who visited the Wyoming Valley last summer.

Antique Show Is Colorful

Mrs. Calvin Hall general chairman of Prince of Peace Antique Show, reports that the offerings were more colorful and varied than last year, and that the innovation of red tablecloths was an attractive foundation for displays of china, glassware and brass. Eight dealers had displays including two from local shops, Primo Berrettini and Mr. and Mrs. Ray Shiber. Out of town dealers were from Williamsport, Shickshinny, Montrose, Doylestown, Kingston.

The snack bar did a rushing business. As preliminary publicity Mrs. Hall, Mrs. Jonathan Valentine, and Mrs. Paul Goddard showed antiques over WBRE TV and Mrs. Clarence Woodruff spoke over WILK.
