Select Lemons—Lemons with a fine-textured skin, heavy for their size, are usually better quality than the coarse-skinned, light colored lemons, Marjorie J. Wormeck, Penn State extension nutritionist, points out.

Check Streaks—Watch out for gray or black streaks running through yarn of white and pastel sweaters. These may be caused by machine oil and are hard to remove either by laundering or dry cleaning. That's the word of caution from Margery L. Bessom, Penn State extension clothing specialist.

Serve Simple Foods—Children like simple foods and those served separately rather than in combinations. Potatoes and meat separately are better liked than hash, according to Marguerite L. Duvall, Penn State extension family life specialist.

Wash Woolens—Wash woolens and many man-made fabrics at a low temperature. For Nylon, Orlon, Dacron, Dynel, and Vicara, use water about 110 degrees, Bernice J. Tharp, Penn State extension clothing specialist, suggests.

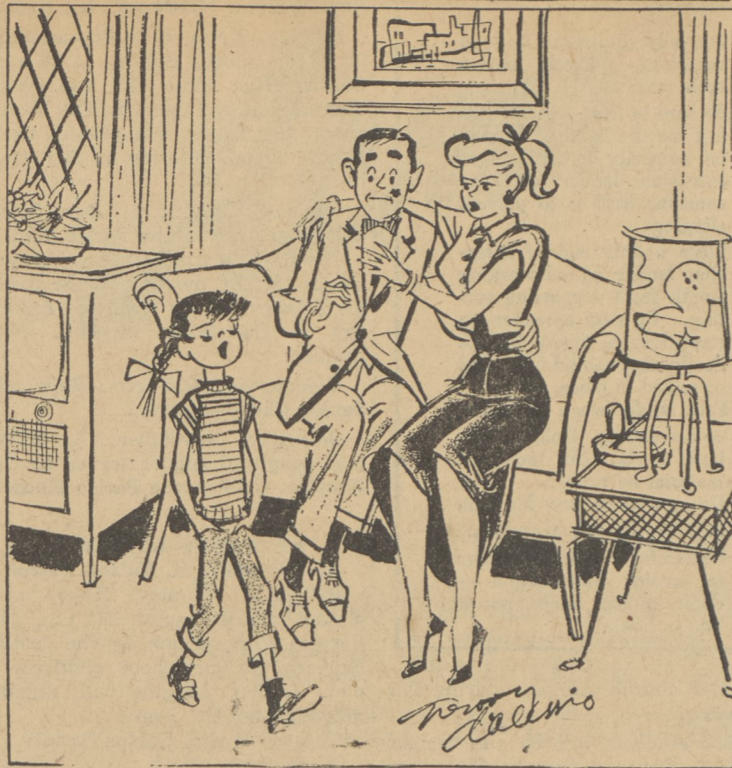

Use of Valances—Valances are sometimes used for decoration or to reduce the effect of high ceilings and windows. But the main purpose of a valance is to continue draperies across the window, Doris L. Conklin, Penn State extension home management specialist, says.

"You can taste the Higher Quality"

says Mrs. Dana P. Dungey

MRS. DANA P. DUNGEY
138 Lake Street
Dallas, Pa.

HERE'S a health-wise housewife who really knows that it is oh, so easy... yet economical... to serve her family only the best U. S. Government graded meats, fruits, vegetables and seafood.

She is the kind of woman who delights in serving her family excellent meals. It is only natural, then, for her to insist on foods that are naturally better. That's why she is delighted with her Freezer-Food Program. It gives her U.S.D.A. Choice Beef... delicious Loins, Chucks, Rounds and thrifty full-weight quarters. Regardless of which cut of beef she buys, she knows that it will taste much better because it is government graded Choice.

Our housewife also knows that when she chooses her fruits and vegetables from the Susquehanna Freezer-Food Program she gets U.S.D.A. Grade "A" Fancy produce. When her capable hands transform them into luscious desserts or entrees, the chorus of "Seconds" is sure to come from everyone... even the kids.

Banquet on a Budget... THE FROZEN FOOD WAY

Every meal is a banquet with our Freezer-Food Program. We send you your choice of our frozen foods... and in the amount your family needs... PLUS the wonderful new HARDER-FREEZ freezer... BOTH for the same amount of money you're now spending each month for food alone.

Phone or stop in at your Susquehanna Frozen Food Center today to learn more about how our Freezer-Food Program can be especially planned to meet the requirements of your family... and your budget. Or better still, ask our health-wise housewife pictured above. She knows.
