FROM PILLAR TO POST

By MRS. T. M. B. HICKS

To the members of the Book Club Hostess Committee, memorandum from the desk of Mrs. T. M. B. Hicks—but not on Bob's priceless brainchild, that lovely pad of printed paper with the "From any point of view, YOU are one of our most valued customers." That pad is too precious to use indiscriminately. In fact, nothing of sufficient importance has yet come up to warrant its use. Pristine in its Christmas wrappings, white pencils still attached, it sits on the desk for gloating purposes only.

Again, to the members of the Hostess Committee: those datted sandwiches weren't intentional. The wrapper on the bread said distinctly, "Thin Sliced." So what happens? I get home with the makings, after the stores have closed, and open the waxed paper wrapper. Thin. Me eye! Made up with a variegated mixture, they resembled something tailored by Dagwood, tasty, but nourishing, guaranteed to stick out like a sore thumb on a tea plate. Whittled down to size, all crusts removed, and cut in four sections apiece, they still reared up like landmarks, large and thick and brown.

But ladies, it was too late to do anything about it. My motto is bull the thing through.

With my tongue in my cheek, and wearing what I considered a poker face, I slid them unobtrusively onto the sidelines in the kitchen and disappeared into the assembly room, where I took a back seat as far from the kitchen door as possible.

Ladies, you can't get away with a thing. There are some days when you can't earn a nickel. Those anonymous sandwiches apparently stood up and shrieked the name of their donor.

One gal said afterwards, "You know those sandwiches? Well, they looked so good we kept them all out in the kitchen for US."

Another gal inquired, "What DID you put in those sandwiches? Never have I sampled anything quite like them."

Still another said, "I seem to diagnose watercrust along with the cream cheese. And is there a hint of tuna?"

Not a hint, gals, it was a whole can. And it wasn't watercrust, it was the sprouted tops of onions left too long in the sack.

Somebody else, dripping creamart. Hedden's low bid is $258,000.

cheese and greenery, said one of those sandwiches was equivalent to a full meal.

Ain't it the truth. The sandwiches melted away, committee members staggering off, loaded to the gunwales. (That's a nautical term, but applied to the gentler sex it refers to the wingspread.)

There were some dainty bite-size cucumber sandwiches on a left-over tray, the right kind for a tea table. And boy, were they good. Also some yummy little drop cookies, genus brownie.

Howabout it, girls? What say I compromise on a jar of Nescafe next time I get stuck with a spot on the hostess committee, and leave the making of the sandwiches to those who have esoteric and inside information, maybe somebody who can even spot man-size slices through an opaque bread wrapper?

In the meantime, don't let it slip you. It was as funny as a crutch. But leave us face it—nobody's foolin' nobody.

Circus Day Is June 11

Dallas Ambulance Sponsors Event

Watch for the circus posters advertising Von Brothers Circus, on Memorial Highway near Castle Inn, June 11. Shows will be at 3 in the afternoon, 8 in the evening.

Lots of animal acts including the Mind-Reading Mule, high diving dogs, riding monkeys, high school horses. Clowns, trapeze artists, jugglers, aerial ballet. Trained seals, trained chimpanzees.

Tickets are being sold by Dallas Community Ambulance Association, which agreed to sponsor the three-ring circus, and selected June 11 as the best possible time, the Saturday after schools close in the Back Mountain.

The circus personnel and animals travel in a motorized cavalcade which sets up the Big Top early enough in the day so that spectators can enjoy the menagerie tent and midway long before the afternoon performance is scheduled. Half an hour before opening, the band will play from a wide repertoire of overture, march, and popular music.

This is a family circus, catering to children and parents, with no gambling, horrifying freaks, or other objectionable features. It is widely scheduled by service clubs and similar organizations. Accommodations are compact enough so that from every seat in the Big Top, all features can be seen and enjoyed.

And there is a Callopie. Don't miss it. Plenty of parking space under direction of members of the Ambulance Association and local police. Rain or shine, it's a date.

New Goods Group Is Enthusiastic

Plans Surprises For Auction Day

Fourteen members of the New Goods Committee for the Ninth Annual Back Mountain Memorial Library Auction, met Monday night at The Dallas Post to work out some innovations.

New Goods, they agreed, are the items which bring in the greatest amount of money for support of the Library. A plan to display such goods in advance of sale was proposed.

Surprise packages of genuine value will be offered for auction. Two weeks in advance, goods already received will be listed in The Dallas Post, together with names of donors.

Robert Bachman, chairman, states that this was the most enthusiastic group he has ever worked with, and predicts merchandise of exceptional quality for the July 8 and 9 sale.

Present were: Howard Risley, Robert Bachman, Harry Lefko, H. W. Smith, Arthur Ross, Raymond Hedden, Henry Peterson, D. T. Scott, William Evans, R. E. Neal, William Wright, Charles Rinehimer, Robert Laux and Walter Black.

Lightning Strikes Roy Borham's Barn

Fifty members of Sweet Valley Volunteer Fire Department answered the call Monday afternoon at 3 when Roy Borham's barn in Oakdale was struck by lightning during the thundershower which broke the drought. The barn, filled with hay, went up like a torch, but machinery in the adjoining shed was saved. There were no animals. Cost of replacement is estimated at $14,000, actual loss $6,000.

REGION'S OLDEST HORSE SHOW WILL BE BIGGER AND BETTER

According to general chairman Johnson, the eleventh annual Horse Show, sponsored by the Lehman Township Volunteer Fire Company, will get under way on Monday, July 4th, at 10 A.M. sharp on the Lehman School grounds—the show will continue all day with a noontime intermission. During intermission the Ladies Auxiliary of the Fire Company will serve a country-style dinner in the Lehman High School. Refreshment stands will provide lunch and refreshments for those who prefer to dine out of doors.

Show chairman, Myron Baker, predicts a full schedule of entries and special events. Prize lists will be in the hands of prospective exhibitors in the near future.

Lanceford Sutton, chairman of program advertising, urges all firemen to turn in advertising not later than the June 13th meeting. There will be special meetings of the firemen on every Monday evening until the day of the show. Due to the Memorial Day holiday, next week's meeting will be held on Tuesday evening, May 31; all firemen are urged to attend.

Marcia Elston was crowned Queen of the May Wednesday afternoon before the largest crowd ever assembled at Lehman-Jackson-Ross for May-Day exercises. Chairs and bleachers were not adequate, spectators sitting on the grass and in cars, or standing to get a better view. Nearly 1,000 attended, with a phenomenal turnout of parents. Lunch was served to over 850.

Identity of the Queen was jealously guarded until the procession started. Marcia was crowned by the Lady in Waiting, Jeanne Casterline, runner-up in student balloting for Queen late in April. William Conyngam, first grade, carried the crown, Rusty Vandermark and George Major bore the train. Alice Ide, Edith Mazonkey, Nancy Williams, and Grace Major served as attendants, and fourteen girls of the senior class as Court of Honor.

The Queen's float featured a map of the world and flags of the nations, an international theme carried out by dances performed by grades one to eleven, French, Swiss, Danish, German, Slovakian, Dutch, Scottish, Irish, and Mexican. Ninth grade girls wound the Maypole.

Kenneth O'Neill Lehman Pastor

Bostic Family Goes To Drew

Rev. Kenneth O'Neill, Eatonville, assigned to the Lehman-Idetown-Jackson charge, will conduct his first services this Sunday. He comes to the local church from the Mehoopany-Eatonville charge. He was ordained as Elder last Sunday at Elm Park Methodist church in Scranton, Bishop Frederick Corson officiating. He is a 1955 graduate of Westminster Theological Seminary, which he has been attending since his decision to study for the ministry five years ago.

Rev. O'Neill is a graduate of Pennsylvania State College, with a degree in Agriculture, obtained years before he felt called upon to enter the ministry. He is married, but there are no children.

Rev. and Mrs. Clayton Bostic expect to leave the Lehman parsonage some time next week, and move to Madison, N. J. where Rev. Bostic will complete his studies at Drew Theological Seminary next June. They plan a two weeks visit to Rev. Bostic's parents in Havre, Montana, as soon as studies are over June 1. To save time, they will fly, taking with them baby Deborah, now nearly a year old.

Dallas Township Millage Raised From 33 To 35

Delays In Survey For Equalization Seen Responsible

Dallas Township school directors have voted an increase of millage from 33 to 35 for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1955, to help finance the new four-room and shop addition now under construction.

Don Evans, board secretary, states that no increase would be necessary if long overdue property assessments had been made two years ago. On the contrary a reduction of millage could have been expected.

Expense of the new addition to Dallas Township will be $10,000 per year for three years, termination date of amortization; for Franklin Township, $7,000 per year for three years.

The only office legally authorized to equalize assessments Mr. Evans said, is Luzerne County Board of Assessors. A bill is now before the legislature, he stated, to force speedier action on revision of assessments.

Raymond Kuhnert, supervising principal, pointed out that many property owners pay neither real estate nor capital tax which is $5 in the Township.

It is not only newcomers moving into the area who escape temporarily such taxation, but property owners of long residence who by some fluke are not on the rolls at the Court House. Sub-assessors rely mainly upon records already in existence in their office, instead of digging into the situation in the field and arriving at a more realistic estimate of changing property values.

Mr. Kuhnert agrees with Mr. Evans in saying that with equalization of assessments, millage would not have needed to be raised. Township millage is now equal to that in Dallas Borough.

The added millage, he says, is reasonable, but it is a straw which shows the way the wind is blowing.

Johnson Speaker At Graduations

Two Schools To Hear "Opportunity" Talk

Both Westmoreland and Lehman-Jackson-Ross high schools will have as commencement speaker Calvin Dean Johnson, collaborating on bringing a man of prestige to the area. Speaking on "Opportunity Unlimited," Mr. Johnson will address the graduating class at Westmoreland June 7, at Lehman June 8. Mr. Johnson, known widely as the "Carpenter to Congressman"

Commencement Speaker

speaker, is a native of Kentucky, of early American stock, his forebears among those landing at Jamestown in the early 1600's. Attending public schools in Kentucky and Illinois, he learned the carpenter trade, became a contractor, and entered actively into community affairs.

He was elected to Congress in 1942, after serving six years in the Illinois General Assembly. In Illinois he was instrumental in breaking the Loan Shark racket, and sponsored the "work or don't eat" law which forced able-bodied men to earn the amount of their relief checks. In Congress he forced abandonment of the European farm machinery project which programmed half a million pieces of heavy machinery for countries now behind the Iron Curtain.

Mr. Johnson combines rare storytelling talent with inspiration in his appearances before hundreds of business and educational groups.
