Motor Club Now Has 102 Patrols

1,500 Boys and Girls Protect 36,000 Pupils

Foremost among the Wyoming Valley Motor Club's many services and benefits is its formation and direction of School Safety Patrols in Wyoming Valley and Back Mountain schools.

The local motor club has sponsored the formation and education of Safety Patrols in 102 Luzerne County schools. More than 1500 youngsters make up this patrol group protecting some 36,000 of their fellow school mates. The motor club provides Sam Brown belts, badges and safety lessons to the patrol members.

For the second successive year the Wyoming Valley Motor Club in May sent a contingent of 36 School Patrol members from various Valley schools to participate in the American Automobile Association's National School Safety Patrol Assembly held in Washington, D. C.

Edward Eyerman, Sr., president of the Wyoming Valley Motor Club, speaking of safety patrol activities, declared, "Membership in the Patrol movement provides an outstanding opportunity for citizenship education. Safety is vital to the personal welfare of all of us. Their unselfish actions and achievements are symbolic of the finest traditions of our nation. They serve to remind others of the importance of safety."

Interestingly, Charles M. Hayes, president of the Chicago Motor Club, is the School Safety Patrol pioneer who, more than any other person, promoted the spread of the Patrol movement throughout the nation. Today, more than 600,000 selected boys and girls protect over 12,500,000 children in 14,000 communities, and the movement continues to grow each year. The objective of the AAA is that every child in elementary and Junior High School be protected at hazardous street corners. This would mean almost a doubling of Patrol members.

Especially noteworthy is the fact that School Safety Patrols are nationally recognized to have had an important role in reducing the traffic death rate among school children by nearly one-half during the period of the last thirty years, while the death rate for all other age groups has almost doubled.

Business College Opens September 8

Wilkes-Barre Business College will open its 73rd fall term on Thursday, September 8. Night school will open on September 19.

Advance registration, according to school officials, is running considerably in advance of the same time last year, and present indications point to an increase in attendance for the coming year.

While few veterans of World War II will be continuing their education, Korean Veterans are entering in increasing numbers to take advantage of educational benefits provided under law.

The business college will offer courses in beginning and advanced work in the stenographic, private secretarial, accounting and business administration fields — specialized courses which the school has offered successively to generations of students of this community.

The school is currently registering day and night students from 9 to 4 daily and until noon on Saturdays.

The four diploma courses starting on September 8 are: stenographic (9 months); secretarial (13 months); accounting (11 months); and business and administration (18 months).

Evening classes will begin September 19. The following subjects will be offered: accounting, typewriting, shorthand, business mathematics, business English, business machines, and brush-up courses.
