Architects' Model Of Institution For Defective Delinquents At Chase

General State Authority has announced that bids for the new State Institution for Defective Delinquents in Jackson Township will be received next week on Thursday, May 17.

Alfred Hopkins and Associates of New York City have prepared this model of the institution. A description of the buildings presented in the model is given in the accompanying story.

Architects' Model Reveals Scope Of Jackson Township Institution

Here is the architects' drawing of the $10-million Pennsylvania Institution for Defective Delinquents which will be built shortly within a 35-acre wire enclosure atop a hill at Chase in Jackson Township.

There will be adequate facilities to house 1,000 inmates with provision for future expansion. The institution will ultimately have a staff of 300 to 400. About 25-percent of the inmates will be held under minimum custody, 65-percent under medium custody and 10-percent under maximum custody.

The Administration building is shown outside the wire fence in the lower left corner of the model. Directly in front of the parking area near the administration building are two small buildings, the one at the left to be used for guards' entrance; the one at the right for visitors' entrance.

Walking inside the fence from the visitor's entrance, one finds the visiting house and classification center. Building at the left is the chapel. Seven large buildings at either end of the quadrangle—four at left and three at right, are detention buildings to be used for minimum-medium security. Directly across the quadrangle from the chapel is the control center with high tower.

Behind the control center and slightly to the left is a large, square high-ceilinged building which is to be used as a gymnasium and auditorium and meeting place for the entire prison population. The building will have a stage for entertainment and will be equipped with the latest motion picture facilities, including a Cinemascope screen.

At the right of the gymnasium are mess hall, kitchen, food storage building and education building in that order, thus completing the buildings around the quadrangle.

Running between the gymnasium and mess hall is an inside corridor which connects with all the remaining buildings in the picture. On the left of the corridor behind the gym is the hospital and behind the hospital are four exterior cell blocks for medium security. However, only two of the cell blocks will be built at the beginning. If the prison population goes beyond 1,000 inmates, it will be necessary to get an additional State appropriation for the other two buildings.

To the right of the corridor are an interior cell block used for maximum security, and the laundry.

Large building at the upper right will be used for industrial purposes to train the delinquents some trade. The building, similar to a vocational training school, will be used for teaching all trades such as carpentry, plumbing, brick laying, tin smithing, sheet metal work, electrical work, printing. It also will be used to make mattresses.

Outside the fence at right are three buildings, food storage building, part of which will be refrigerated; garage and heating plant which will burn anthracite. Seven control towers are located at strategic points around the outside of the fence.

Wyoming Valley Womans Club Sees Lord's Puppets

Lord's world famous marionettes were shown to an appreciative audience at Wyoming Valley Womans Club annual luncheon, held at the Country Club Tuesday afternoon, the second time the club has engaged the young impressario. Lord, still in his early twenties, manages the entire production single-handed, controlling the music with his foot, the soap-bubble machine with a knee, and acting along with his puppets from his stance above the backdrop. This appearance, he says, is the first of a series of last appearances—for the next eighteen months he will make a world tour, including South America and Africa, taking with him 200 puppets, scenery, and properties.

Mrs. Robert Currie, Druid Hills, president for the past two years, relinquished the chair to Mrs. Faye Hopkins, Sr.
