New Waterproofing Combats Cellar Dampness

By NICK MAURIELLO

How about painting on "Coprox"? Purchasing this product means Good-Bye to wet walls; Coprox will beautify the interior or exterior of any masonry walls. Advertisers in LIFE, this nationally known product eliminates cellar dampness or even worse, water in the basement. Even expensive homes frequently find water seeping into the cellars. Coprox is a copperized cement compound, unlike other water repellent coatings, it can be applied on both wet and dry walls. Dampness is especially discouraging to home owners who plan to use the basement for more than just storage space.

Every year more families are using the basement space, so that the youngsters are out of their way and can do little damage to themselves or to the rest of the house if a simple playroom in the cellar is planned for them. If the adults want a party room for themselves, remember, a playroom is not good for your health unless the cellar remains at a certain temperature all year round.

Not too many years ago, a new copperized cement paint entered the market, it's name "Coprox." Upon applying this product, it penetrates, expands and seals the pores which means a saving when buying fuel. Folks! Damp, unusable cellars can be converted to extra room space quickly and reasonably priced. Available colors are: Gray, Green, Rose, Buff and White.

P.S. FREE to the first (50) fifty customers, a $3.00 Nylon Coprox Brush, if you purchase (1) one drum, the price is $15.60, it's 6 gallons of Coprox. You may need less. I'm representing the S. J. Clark Co., of Connecticut; for this specialty simply call the home office: Dallas Sales, Luzerne, Dial BUtler 8-3586. Advt.
