

Librarians Receive History of Funeral Directing

Miss Miriam Lathrop, librarian of Back Mountain Memorial Library, and Miss Sullivan, assistant librarian at College Misericordia, receive copies of Dr. Robert W. Hanabstein's "History of American Funeral Directing" from Elmer T. Williams, Back Mountain chairman, and William P. Clothier, vice president of Luzerne County Funeral Directors Association. The presentation was made at Back Mountain Memorial Library in the presence of Atty. Mitchell Jenkins, president of Back Mountain Memorial Library. Similar copies have been given by the Association to all public libraries and private school libraries in the county. A. J. Kopicki is chairman of the book committee and Carl Adonizio is president of the Association.

Stanley Corby Burial In Marsh Cemetery At 2

Stanley Corby, Center Moreland, will be buried this afternoon in Marsh Cemetery. Rev. Robert Mordt will conduct services from Center Moreland Methodist Church at 2 p.m. The body will lie in state from 1 p.m.

Mr. Corby, 77, a resident of Center Moreland since he was twenty years old, died at General Hospital on Monday. He was born in Eaton Township, son of the late David and Sarah E. Sickler Corby. He was a member of Center Moreland Methodist Church and of Vernon Grange.

Survivors are: a foster son, Clarence Corby, Center Moreland; two brothers: A. B. Corby and Floyd Corby, Center Moreland; sisters: Mrs. Fannie Evans, Center Moreland; Mrs. Myrtle Swain, Bucyrus, Ohio; and Mrs. Olin Carey, Evans Falls.

Native Of Loyalville Prominent In Valley

Olin R. Mullison, native of Loyalville and prominent Wilkes-Barre businessman, passed away Thursday at noon in his home in Kingston. He was buried in Mt. Greenwood Cemetery on Saturday following services from the Central Methodist Church, Wilkes-Barre.

He is survived by three daughters: Mrs. Addison Ellis, Philadelphia; Mrs. Bert Lauderbaugh, Glenburn; and Mrs. John Rogers, White Plains, N. Y.

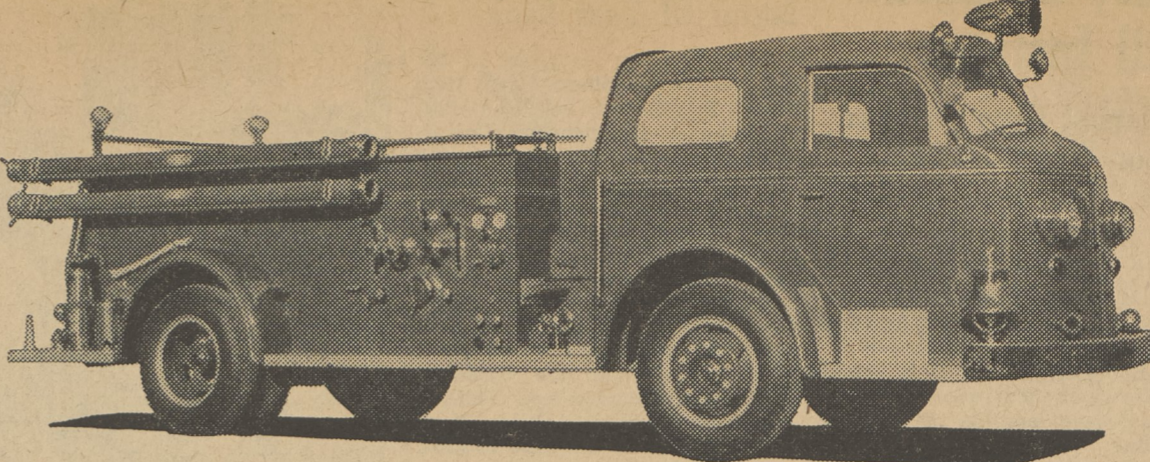

One of the founders of First National Bank of Kingston, and of the Acme Stores Co., for which he was zone manager, he was prominently identified for fifty years with important business and civic interests in Wyoming Valley.

Son of the late E. B. and Elizabeth Parks, he attended rural schools of Lake Township and Pleasant Hill Academy in Sweet Valley. For several years he taught in one-room school houses before finding his field in the grocery business. Building a chain of 62 Mullison Economy stores, he sold them to Acme, and took the position of operating manager.

He is survived by three daughters: Mrs. Addison Ellis, Philadelphia; Mrs. Bert Lauderbaugh, Glenburn; and Mrs. John Rogers, White Plains, N. Y.

Daniel C. Roberts Company's New American LaFrance Pumper

Hundreds of bright red and white coin cards are being distributed to summer and year around residents of Lake Township by members of Daniel C. Roberts Fire Company. When the cards are each filled with twelve quarters and returned to the fire company, they will go a long way toward wiping off the remaining debt on the fine new American LaFrance pumper shown above. This equipment, second to none in the country, gives all residents of the township unexcelled fire protection and goes a long way toward holding fire insurance rates within reason.

When You Retire

(Continued from Page Two) told us as he picked up one of his wooden steeds. It had an exaggerated neck, a quaint, beaming face, and a mane and tail of leather thongs. It was painted deep pink with blue trim on the rockers. "I give some of them a wood finish," he added. "With a little stain and varnish you can make a hobby horse that looks like a piece of fine furniture."

them cause she was going to shoot 'em with buckshot and sell 'em for antiques.

"I use hardwoods like sweet gum, ash, and maple—mostly odds and ends I pick up over at the lumber mill. I take my time and turn out a quality product. Lots of folks say my horses are better looking and better made than any you'll find in stores nowadays."

"The materials cost about $4 per horse and I sell 'em for $15. With this and my pension I do all right."

"People seem to go for that old-fashioned design," he went on. "A woman from New York ordered four horses last week. She said not to bother painting or varnishing and a little unusual it will always sell. And keeping busy in retirement is a lot more fun than sitting on the porch watching the cars whiz by."
