

College Student On School Census

Charles C. James, a Junior at Mansfield State Teachers College, is taking a school census of Dallas Borough for Dallas School Board during his summer vacation.

Son of Prof. and Mrs. Charles James, and a graduate of Westmoreland High School, he will teach sixth grade in New Egypt, N. J., during the coming year. Because of the great teacher shortage in New Jersey and Delaware, he has been granted an emergency teaching certificate and will continue his studies nights and weekends at a New Jersey college.

Penn State Club Arranges Outing

Alumni Will Gather August 8 At Lakes

Annual outing of Penn State Alumni Club of Wyoming Valley will be held Wednesday, August 8, at O'Connell's Twin Lakes from 6 P.M. on.

William Griffith and John Ruth, co-chairmen of the outing committee, have announced that tickets are available from the Club officers and committee chairmen and have also been distributed to the following pick-up points: Robbins' Sporting Goods Store, Wilkes-Barre; Mattern Florist, Pittston; Rave's Nursery, Shavertown; James Brownlee, Kingston; Central Ticket Agency, Fort Durkee Hotel; Wesley Auto Company, Nanticoke; Sagenkahn's Hardware Store, Forty Fort; Hoesy Insurance Agency, Plymouth.

Refreshments will be served and an excellent program is planned. Highlight will be the display of the Club's new banner, donated to the local alumni by Dr. W. R. A. Boben, an alumnus.

All Penn Staters and their friends are urged to purchase their tickets as soon as possible. Questions concerning the outing should be directed to the Secretary's office The Pennsylvania State University Center, Wilkes-Barre.

STATE POLICE SAY

No one can be considered a real driver unless his traffic habits include care, courtesy and common sense as fundamentals for safety. Know and obey traffic law.

"Since 1953 Sec. Benson has traveled 284,000 miles on the job," Press report. This information will probably move the farmer to comment, "That's a long way to go to get nowhere."

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of J. Lear Wagner, husband of Sophie D. Wagner, who passed away July 22, 1955.

The body shall dissolve to dust, Such is our nature's doom— What we on earth call life is just The threshold of the tomb.

'Tis only when we're called above By God, that He will give The perfect, understanding love That shall forever live.

Students Plan For Edinburg

Will Sail Latter Part Of September

Sally Kear, Lake Street, now at A-Bar-A dude ranch in Wyoming, will sail for Scotland September 25, to enter the University of Edinburg for her junior year of college. With her will be Sally Ide, and three other students from Elmira College for Women. Sally Kear is the lone representative from Skidmore.

Sally has made her own arrangements, procured her own passport and credentials, and made inquiry as to clothing required. Bermuda shorts, she finds, are taboo. Skirts and sweaters and wool dresses form the backbone of the student wardrobe. The girls will be together in a dormitory housing fifty girls. They hope there is central heating, but are taking along warm winter woolies and flannel pajamas, just in case. Silk dresses, they are told by a returned Vassar friend, are too thin for comfort for dress wear.

Sally Kear, in charge of domestic arrangements at one of the ranch guest houses, finds time to ride every afternoon, and to take a correspondence course with the University of Wyoming, situated at Laramie, ninety miles distant.

Brightly Colored

If it's bright green, chances are it's young, fresh, tender, and sweet. Color is one way to pick the best-quality fresh peas, points out Marjorie J. Wormeck, extension nutritionist of the Pennsylvania State University. Pods of immature peas are usually dark green in color with a wilted appearance. Over-mature pea pods may be swollen and poorly colored.
