Carl M. Walters Dies Of Acute Heart Attack

Carl M. Walters, Ruggles Hollow, was buried in St. Nicholas Cemetery Tuesday morning. A high mass of requiem at Our Lady of Victory Chapel followed brief services from the Snowdon Funeral Home, Wilkes-Barre. Nephews served as pallbearers: Ferdinand and Walter Hennebaul, William Joyce, Walter, Paul and John Rollman, Jr., and a brother-in-law, Martin Dolan.

Mr. Walters, 63, died Saturday afternoon in General Hospital, where he had been admitted the preceding Sunday by Harveys Lake ambulance. Since suffering an acute heart attack six years before, which necessitated retirement from management of the Aquarium Restaurant on South Main Street, Wilkes-Barre, Mr. Walters had not been in good health. The immediate cause of his death was a third acute heart attack. It was at the time of his retirement from business that he moved from Wilkes-Barre to make his home with his daughter, Elizabeth.

He was a native of Wilkes-Barre, son of the late William P. and Barbara Schwab Walters.

He is survived by his widow, the former Elizabeth Gelschleier; a daughter, Elizabeth; three sisters, Mrs. Harry Kuhl, Binghamton, N.

Enclosed is a clipping which I cut out of the Binghamton Sun this morning.

Respectfully,
Mrs. Ray A. King,

Binghamton, N. Y.

EDITOR'S NOTE: The clipping which Mrs. King enclosed was a reprint of part of Dallas Post editorial on Litterbugs which was picked up and sent to all newspapers by the E. Hofer & Sons Syndicate of Portland, Oregon. Here it is:

DALLAS, PA., POST—In the horse-and-buggy days, flying trash—especially wind-borne newspapers—was a frequent cause of runaways. Quaint as it sounds, you'd think such accidents were a thing of the past, but they're not! Today trash on the highways kills and maims more people than ever before. The Western Insurance Information Service reports from 750 to 1,000 deaths and nearly 100,000 serious injuries are caused every year by cars striking objects thrown on the road by litterbugs.

planes and missiles and on into a glimpse of the era of rockets and the future of flight. "Air Power" is produced in full cooperation with the U. S. Air Force.

STARDUST II, a war story involving a platoon of soldiers, their commanding officer and a cherished truck, will star John Forsythe on "The Goodyear Playhouse" Sunday, Nov. 11 (NBC-TV, 9-10 p. m., EST). "Stardust II" is the name of their truck which they dismantle and smuggle overseas when they get their orders to Korea.

SGT. BILKO (Phil Silvers) and Julie Andrews star of "My Fair Lady" will be on Ed Sullivan's show this Sunday.

JACK AND THE BEANSTALK, a 90-minute musical based on the famous fairy story will be colorcast on "Producers' Showcase" Monday, Nov. 12, 8-9:30 p. m., EST.)

Most of the published versions have but three characters, Jack, his mother and the giant. The television story includes a creature called "Mad Meggie" (Celeste Holm), Tillie (Peggy King), the girl next door, who is Jack's romantic interest; Fum (Arnold Stang), Poopledoop (Billy Gilbert, an overbearing neighbor. The traditional peddler will be portrayed by Cyril Richard (which means that he will hardly be at all traditional), and Jack's mother will be enacted by Leora Dana.

SONGS, all eleven from "Jack and the Beanstalk," will be available on records. Peggy King has recorded "He Never Looks My Way" for Columbia. Terri Stevens sings "Sweet World" on a Victor record. Unique Records had recorded all eleven songs. Golden Records are slated to bring out eight sides in a special children's edition.

NANCY KELLY will star in the "Studio One" production "The Pilot," which will be seen Monday (10:00-11:00 p. m., EST., CBS-TV).

"The Pilot," an original teleplay by Paul Crabtree, is based on the true account of Sister Mary Aquinas, the first Catholic nun to get an airplane pilot's license. "The Pilot" was originally scheduled for October 8, but was cancelled on the night of the performance when Margaret Sullivan failed to appear. Members of the original cast, who are still available, will appear in the production.

COMING—Ralph Bellamy, Nina Foch, Floyd Bridges and John Ericson will star in "Heritage of Anger" on CBS Television's "Playhouse 90," Thursday, Nov. 15 (9:30-11:00 p. m., EST.)

Nina Foch is currently seen in Cecil B. DeMille's "The Ten Commandments."

Thursday's events will include a Board of Directors meeting; a trip to Corning Glass Works at Corning, N. Y.; a concert by Wellsboro men's chorus; round and square dancing.

Saturday morning the Northeast District Sale will be held and over 50 head of registered Holsteins, selected by Ralph Sands, Wyoming, from top herds in the area, will be offered for sale.

Arthur W. Nesbitt, State College, Secretary-Fieldman for the Association, reports that a record attendance is anticipated. "All convention events are open to any one interested in the Holstein breed. Interest and participation in all Holstein activities in Pennsylvania is at an all-time high," he said. "Our herd classification program has increased 200% over last year; our state membership is greater than ever before and is now over 2000; we lead all other states in the nation in the number of National memberships added in 1956. During the coming convention we will plan how to expand our program to meet the needs of an increasing membership of an active organization." He pointed out that the Pennsylvania Holstein Association carries on a service, educational, legislative and promotional program that extends throughout the
