Chief Jesse Coslett Urges Drivers To Make Their Cars Safe For Winter

Motorists should never relax their efforts to drive safely, Police Chief Jesse Coslett, Kingston Township, said yesterday, and they should make a special effort now to get their cars in shape for safe winter driving in the months ahead—for their own protection and for the safety of their families.

"It's surprising to see how many motorists are caught unprepared by snow and ice around this time of year," Chief Coslett observed. "It reminds me of the fellow who couldn't put storm windows on his home when it was cold but didn't put them on while the weather was mild because he didn't need them."

One of the chief goals of the "Back the Attack on Traffic Accidents" campaign will be to urge motorists to winterize their cars before winter really sets in.

Chief Coslett emphasized that winterizing a car means more than changing oil and putting in anti-freeze. "Of great importance to safety of the motorists are the brakes, headlights, and other mechanical features of his car," he said. "Live windshield wiper blades, defrosters in good working order, proper headlights, good tires and tire chains are all items the motorist can check now so they'll be ready when he needs them.

National Safety Council tests proved that a pair of good tire chains are the best possible source of traction on traffic packed snow and ice. "Two full chains on rear tires are better than wishful thinking when the snow and ice conditions get bad," the chief advised. "They will help eliminate traffic tie-ups as well as accidents."

Dodson & Hudak Are Kept Busy

Local Firm Building Several New Homes

Dodson and Hudak, local building contractors, are experiencing a busy winter season, with some homes nearing completion and several other under construction.

Most of their activity is in New Goss Manor where they have just completed a home on Highland Avenue for Lane Jarret of Philadelphia who is engaged in the wholesale lumber business.

They have another three-bedroom ranch-type home on Highland Avenue about completed and ready for sale.

The firm is also completing a split-level, 4 bedroom home on Highland Avenue for Oliver Troupe, Jr., vice president and general manager of Atlas Chain and Manufacturing Company of Pittston. Mr. Troupe was formerly of Philadelphia. This lovely home has two and one-half bathrooms and a completely finished playroom.

Excavation for the cellar for a three-bedroom home on Cliffside Drive for Lawrence Kolankecz is started. This VA home will also have a garage on the side.

A three-bedroom ranch type home with a double carport is being constructed on Mt. Airy Road, Shavertown, for Charles Tyrrell who presently lives on the same street.

A garage with stone faced front is also being built for Shavertown Lutheran Church. It will be 14 by 30 feet.
