Tax Refund For State Farmers

House Exempts Gas For Off-Highway Use

Grange members of Luzerne County hailed the passage by the Legislature and signing by the Governor of House Bill No. 33 as the end of a long fight on the part of the Grange.

Donald G. Miller, Master of Northern Luzerne County Pomona Grange No. 44 said today:

"This bill, drafted by the Grange, provides for a permanent program of refunds to farmers of Pennsylvania of the tax they pay on gasoline used in farm machinery. This tax has always been unfair and inequitable. Our farmers contribute to the programs of highway construction and maintenance through the license fees they pay on their cars and trucks, through the tax on gasoline used in these vehicles and through real estate taxes on their farm properties. There never was justification for taxing this gasoline used in "off-the-highway uses" for road building purposes.

"We certainly appreciate the action of the Legislature and the Governor in correcting this inequity."

When You Retire...

(Continued from Page 2) but we are not all religious. Any minister can tell of persons who come to him saying they would like to have faith in God and in immortality but that they cannot intellectually accept the idea. Such persons may attempt to find spiritual peace through other avenues.

G. Stanley Hall reports in his book Senescence that he mailed a questionnaire to a number of prominent older men and women in which he asked about their personal religion. One scientist replied that there was only one word in the world that had real meaning for him, and that was the word love—the love we should have toward our fellow man. Another scholar reported that his religion happened to be a firm belief in the work of the Red Cross. And an author replied that he found his religion in his duty to his race and to humanity in general.

SUCH SUBSTITUTE BELIEFS may meet the needs of some older people, but others will find their greatest satisfaction through faith in God. The beauty of believing was well-expressed by a man lying in a hospital bed with only a few minutes to live. He murmured happily to his nurse that he would soon "be stepping over the Golden Threshold." His nurse looked at him with doubt in her eyes and asked, "What if life just ends and there's nothing more?" The old man smiled and replied, "That's all right too for I've had pleasure in believing."

Eating Places Must Get State Licenses

Due to the misinterpretation of a decision rendered recently by the Department of Justice, Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, many operators of eating and drinking establishments have been applying to the Division of Food Sanitation, Pennsylvania Department of Health, Harrisburg, for licenses to conduct such a business.

Dr. C. Hayden Phillips, District Medical Director for Luzerne County, and George H. Livingstone, Regional Sanitarian for northeastern Pennsylvania, wish to clarify the above ruling. They state that where a municipality, borough, or township has its own board of health, it is the responsibility of those boards of health to inspect and license the establishments.

Only where the health and sanitation program is being rendered and supervised by the Pennsylvania Department of Health, as it is in the Back Mountain region, will licenses be required from the Division of Food Sanitation, Harrisburg.

Any one desirous of more information on the licensing procedure now in effect is referred to either Dr. Phillips, whose office is in the Miners National Bank Building, or Mr. Livingstone's office which is in the Kirby Memorial Health Center.
