The great fishermen have left us for the day. It's so peaceful and quiet around here I'm wondering if I should take some hamburger out of the freezer or plan on having the trout dinner I've been promised? I suppose I could just happen to have the meat loaf all baked and ready for sandwiches next week. The liniment, aspirin, mercuriochrome, and lambs wool slippers are all in the living room waiting for the tired body to drop in the nearest chair. Is it worth it? They think so. There is never a groan when the alarm clock goes off at 5:30 instead of 7. The night before one of these great fishing expeditions it takes hours and hours to get the poles out, the lines greased and wound, the tackle located, a heavy coat in case of cold, a light coat in case of heat, a sweater for in between, a spare shirt, socks and sometimes shoes in case of need, bug repellent, a bottle of liquid and the stick type went on this trip, several candy bars to ease the hunger pains and maybe to feed the fish, at least two thermos jugs, one for coffee and one for tea. On and on the necessities add up. Then the questions begin. Do we have a little bottle that I could put some aspirin in? How about a waterproof box for some matches? Where are the band-aids? Last year I had a folding tin cup—where is it? Oh, well, they have gone now. The meat loaf is in the oven and I can turn my thoughts to the weekly items.

We are sorry to report that Bobbie Disque has the measles.

We are equally sorry to have to report that Dr. H. A. Brown is again a patient in the Nesbitt Hospital. He expects to undergo surgery some time this week.

We are very pleased to report a new addition to the family of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Clark of Renton, Washington State. Mrs. Clark is the former Christine Ruggles, daughter of Mrs. Hazel Ruggles Lewis and the late Leroy Ruggles. The Clarks are particularly thrilled as this is their first son. They have six daughters, Pamela, Shelia, Lois, Ferrel and Norma and Valencia.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Shoultice, former Lehman residents, have announced the birth of a daughter, Cindy Lou in South Plainfield, N. J. The Shoultices have another daughter.

Today is the birthday of Jaqueline Snyder. Michael Drabick, Louise Marks, Emma May Kocher, Charles Erwine, Geraldine Sutton, Joe Ellsworth, Marielaine Hodge, Beulah Niezgoda will all celebrate birthdays this week.

P. S. The fishermen have returned. No fish, aching bones, hungry stomachs, (bless the meat loaf) blisters on their heels—they walked at least twelve miles. Already the plans are made for next week's trip. Have fun, boys!
