Oak Hill

Hi, friends. Is everybody heading for the Bloomsburg Fair? After two years' futile attempts, we hope to take the young one down this year to see the sights. We rather imagine the animals will be the major point of interest.

Last week we received a lovely letter from Anne Hubbard in which she asked to be remembered to all the bowling girls. She says she thinks about them every Tuesday night between 9:15 and 9:30.

Speaking of bowling, we're rather proud of our better half's standing in the Back Mountain Church League's summer schedule—he had second highest average and second highest single game (248).

Mr. and Mrs. John Kenyon and sons, David and Stephen, have returned to their home on Sunset Drive after spending the weekend at their cottage at Beach Haven, New Jersey.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Bicking and Mr. and Mrs. William Jones had as weekend visitors Mr. and Mrs. Frank Trexler of Allentown.

We're glad to report that Mrs. Harold Cook has returned from Nesbitt Hospital and is feeling better.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kanasky and Mr. and Mrs. William Hollingsworth had as guests over the weekend Mrs. Jean Shuff and children, Barbara and Michael, and Mrs. Gladys Sykes, all of New Cumberland, and Mr. and Mrs. Harold Grimes and daughters, Cathy, Betsy and Patricia, of Kingston.

New At Oak Hill

Mr. and Mrs. Rudolph J. Schleich and daughters, Kathryn, aged 2, and Lisa, aged 3, have moved into their new home in the upper circle. The couple formerly resided in Buffalo, New York. Mr. Schleich has been appointed to the teaching staff of the history department at King's College.

A native of Bavaria, Germany, the new instructor holds a BS degree from Canisius College, a master's degree from the University of Buffalo and has completed requirements for the doctorate at Fordham University.

Mr. Schleich did archival research for his dissertation in Vienna and Munich on a Fulbright Grant in 1954-1955.

Present were Mesdames Lula Schultz, Bruce Mathers, Leslie Sabo, Frank Lengyen, Ernest Fritz, Pearl Connor, Corey Meade, Claire McKenna, Ralph Welsh, George May, Russell Rogers, Harold Donnelly, Bruce Williams, Dora Evans, Hope Ide, Kenneth Calkins, Rev. and Mrs. Kenneth O'Neill, Bess Cooke.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hilbert with Mr. and Mrs. Walters and daughter Elaine of Easton spent the weekend with Mrs. Hattie Hilbert. Mrs. Hilbert spent last week with relatives and friends in Chenango Bridge, N. Y.

Anthony Toluba Jr. is enrolled at Rochester Institute of Technology in a five year course of Chemical Engineering.

Mrs. Sallie Brown is home from a three week visit with her son, Walter and family of Newark, N. Y.

Harvey Kitchen is a patient in the Nesbitt Hospital.

The Bible study on the Book of Acts will be held in the church on Wednesday night at 7:30 with Rev. O'Neill in charge.

America's Richest Women Named

America's ten richest women—who are they? How much money do they have and how do they spend it? Are they happy? Who are they? They don't know themselves. Nor do their lawyers know; nor can they, their lawyers or their investment counselors say, even within the last $10 million, just how wealthy they are because their fluctuating assets can only be estimated in round figures.

The September Ladies' Home Journal names the ten women who are probably the very richest and tells, briefly, their life stories. Those listed and their estimated fortunes are: Doris Duke, who acquired her father's American Tobacco Company fortune at age 21 ($300 million); Mrs. Edsel Ford, heiress to Ford Motor Company millions and J. L. Hudson, Detroit department store (nearly $300 million); Mrs. Merriweather Post, whose father developed and popularized Post Toasties and Grape-Nuts ($250 million); Mrs. Horace Dodge Sr., widow of the motor car manufacturer ($250 million); Mrs. Frederick E. Guest, whose father was a partner of Andrew Carnegie ($200 million).

Worth between $125 million and $200 million are Mrs. Alfred I. duPont, whose husband's family got its start with a gunpowder mill on the banks of Brandywine Creek; Mrs. Charles Shipman Payson, the former Joan Whitney, sister of Jock Whitney, U.S. Ambassador to Great Britain; and Mrs. Mary G. Roebeling, one of the nation's ablest banking brains. Mrs. Chauncey McCormick, heiress of McCormick and Deering farm implement fortunes, has an estimated $120 million and Helena Rubinstein, the list's only self-made woman, has a personal fortune around $100 million.

How do these women spend their fortunes? They can—and do—buy anything they want.

But they spend more on helping crippled children, finding causes for diseases, relieving poverty and raising education standards than they do on themselves.

Are they happy? Most of them are unhappy about the publicity they get. They can't marry, have children, get divorced or write a check without getting attention, which always prompts letters asking "Why do you have so much money?" and "If you have so much, why can't you give me even just one million?"

The biggest problem of a woman of immense wealth is more personal. As one woman put it, it is "finding a place where she can feel she is needed and is doing something worthwhile enough to be interesting."
