

Dallas District Condemns Site Under Dispute

Land To Be Posted To Stone Wall, Survey Ordered

Dallas District Schools voted condemnation of property for the construction of a new school, up to the stone wall, Thursday evening in executive session. The plot embraces approximately seventeen acres recently purchased by Hume Daron from the Lipp farm. The entire acreage is 42.72, plus acreage already under option by the school board for portions of the Arthur Newman and the Rice farm.

Atty. Jonathan Valentine was instructed to institute condemnation proceedings immediately.

Mr. Daron met with the building site committee in advance of the board meeting called for 9:30. Various proposals were made, but no basis of mutual agreement was reached. The board delivered the ultimatum for condemnation proceedings, and Mr. Daron left.

A survey of the site will be made by John Jeter, and notices of condemnation posted.

Frank Townend, speaking from the chair, asked for an inspection of the aerial map drawn up when the site was first discussed, and asked if some one of the other sites could not be decided upon.

The site committee, chairman James Hutchison, said that the site had been unanimously approved by the board. Any change in it would of necessity mean delay while Harrisburg sent up another team to inspect the land and approve or refuse to approve.

This delay might cause removal of the district from its place as 117th on the list for receipt of building appropriation from the State, and place it farther down the line.

Francis Ambrose asked to be relieved of his position on the building site committee.

Mrs. Gregory, Nearing One Hundred, Breaks Leg

Mrs. Frances Gregory, lacking only two and a half months of reaching the century mark, fell from her wheel chair Thursday night and broke her good leg. The other hip was broken five years ago. She is as comfortable at Nesbitt Memorial Hospital as it is possible to make her. Bronson's ambulance transported her shortly after the fall.

Mrs. Gregory is a member of Oakdale Methodist Church. She has a keen mind and a good memory in spite of her great age. She is the oldest member of the community in that area of Hunlock Creek RD. It was Mrs. Gregory who posed for her picture, "Give Us This Day Our Daily Bread" on the front page of the Dallas Post's Thanksgiving issue. She will be 100 years old March 6, 1958.

No Deliveries From Hill The Florist Christmas Day

Through an oversight, the advertisement of Hill-the Florist in last week's issue of The Dallas Post contained an error. The advertisement stated "There will be deliveries Christmas morning." This was wrong. Florists and their employees, like everyone else, will be enjoying Christmas Day with their families. There will be no deliveries from Hill's on Christmas Day. The Post regrets the error.

About 50 million Americans — owners, employees and their families — depend upon small business for their livelihood.

Small Sports Car Leaves Highway, Nobody Injured

A small imported sports car with two girls in it left the highway between the Lehman intersection and the Crown Imperial Bowling Lanes Monday at 4 p.m. A number of passing motorists stopped, and the car, its windshield cracked, was lifted back onto the highway. Dr. E. A. Groblewski, Lehman, stopped to offer assistance, but neither girl was injured. The sports car proceeded toward Wilkes-Barre under its own power.

Tonight, children all over the world ponder the mystery of the Mother and the Holy Babe. They dream of the manger and the humble shepherds. Wide-eyed with awe, they stand upon the Judean hills, and hear anew the song of the angels. They kneel with the gentle lambs and the patient beasts of the field before the Christ Child, and the star is bright above, shedding the light of its promise, Peace on earth, good will to men. Mountains of Pipe Pile Up At Alderson

Steel pipe for Transcontinental Gas & Pipeline Company's new transmission line which will be laid between Renovo and Princeton, N. J. piles up on A. J. Sordoni's Sterling Farm at Harveys Lake. An average of sixteen carloads per day is being carried to the storage by Bowman's Creek Branch of the Lehigh Valley Railroad. When a Post reporter this week asked a veteran geologist if he thought local gas reserves might equal the Leidy, Clinton County field, he replied: "No!" then he added, "they drilled 250 wells in that field. About 200 of them were dry. A driller's paradise. I said 'no' because I think there is no comparison. Every well drilled in the local field is a producer. That's hitting 100%. The public isn't aware of its significance." (Photo by Kozemchak)

College Misericordia Students In Annual Candlelight Procession

The campus at College Misericordia is deserted for the Christmas holidays. Two chartered buses took students to New York, and girls scattered to the four winds, some of them as far off as the Virgin Islands. Students who could not get to their own foreign lands, went home with other students who live nearer at hand. College will reopen January 6.

The annual Christmas program, one of the high spots of the student year, was the last of the school festivities.

Over 500 students took part in the candlelight procession Friday night. In good weather, the procession passes out of doors and around the administration building, but a drenching downpour prevented. The ceremony was carried out in MacAuley Hall, to the delight of a capacity audience, which joined in the singing of Christmas music.

A string quartet directed by Ferdinand Liva, played both at the evening program and at the morning carolling, where students from eleven language groups sang carols of many lands.

The carillon bells played Veni Emmanuel for the evening procession. The First Noel was one of the favorite carols. The recessional was the traditional Adeste Fidelis, with the audience taking part in the chorus.

The annual Christmas play featured members of the Jewish Sanhedrin, gathered in Herod's palace to verify reports concerning the coming of the Messiah. Taking part in "Star of Prophecy" were Suzanne Vogt as Hillel, High Priest of Israel; Marie Policare, as Azor, leader of the Zealots; Anne Marie Sundram, Elizabeth Wallace, Regina Miller, Marjorie Moll, Joan Krause, and Eleanor Repeta.

Two Blessed Events For Grandparents

Two blessed events for grandparents Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hartman of Trucksville, and both on the same night . . . but the dates don't jibe, as one baby was born at the height of the storm Friday evening, and the second after midnight.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ned Hartman of Trucksville, she is their first child. Mrs. Hartman is the former Lois Miller of Plymouth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Miller.

Winter Fishing Is Liberalized

That hardy breed of fishermen who like to get out on the winter ice for their sport were reminded by William Voigt, Jr., Executive Director of the Pennsylvania Fish Commission, that some further liberalization has been brought about by action of the 1957 Legislature and by Commission rulings under the law.

A Commission statement said: "The new situation makes it possible for fishermen to fish through the ice all winter for all species on which the season is not closed. This means that from the time hard ice forms until it goes out in the early spring fishermen may catch and keep whatever fish bites except trout. There is one possible exception. In the event ice fishing lasts beyond March 15, those catching bass would have to put them back, as the season for bass is closed from March 15 through June 14.

"The Legislature legalized fishing with as many as five tipups, and the Commission has interpreted the law to mean that the fishermen may use as many as five legal devices of any kind, in combination, if they desire, so long as the rule against using more than two rods and lines and one handline is observed.

"Previously, the rule had been that tipups might be used only in the months of December and January for pickerel and perch. This had been confusing to both fishermen and enforcement officers, and we are happy that the General Assembly clarified and simplified the law. What the new situation means is that fishermen may use the tipups or rod lines or hand lines in combination from the time hard ice forms until it goes out.

"We would like to remind the fishermen also that all lakes in State parks likewise will be open for ice fishing. On many of them, however, where the lakes are away from highways, the fishermen will have to walk in, especially at night, as the gates will be closed to vehicular traffic. Dr. Maurice K. Goddard, Secretary of Forests and Waters, has advised that ice fishing will not be allowed in park waters at dams, spillways, interior bridges, beaches or boat docks."

"Pennsylvania Trapping and Predator Control Methods", a new 72-page booklet, amply illustrated with photos and drawings, has just been published by the Game Commission. The author is Paul Failor, Supervisor of the Commission's Predator Control Section. Failor is widely recognized as an expert trapper, trapping instructor and fur specialist.

In this manual Failor tells how to trap any wild predator or fur animal in Pennsylvania. In the handbook are found also, instructions for making lure, preparing bait, and properly handling the catch.

Many natural history facts about birds and animals found in the Commonwealth are contained in the work. For example, the incubation and gestation periods of game birds and animals are given, plus the number of eggs or young per nest or litter and the average weights of adults.

This long-needed guide will provide novice trappers much information that will help them to successfully harvest predators and furbearers. Even experienced trappers will find pointers and little known facts of value in the text.

As in no other booklet of its kind, the author includes instructions on the fascinating sports of crow and great horned owl calling.

Information on trapping laws and the rules and regulations that should be known and observed by anyone who runs a trap line in Pennsylvania are included for extra measure.

The price of this exceptional trapping and predator control booklet is 25 cents. It may be obtained from the Harrisburg office of the Game Commission or any of the agency's Field Division offices.

Christmas Will Interrupt Work In Jackson Twp.

Thirty Buildings Now At Some Stage Of Construction

Most of the four hundred men employed on the new State Institution for Mental Delinquents in Jackson Township will enjoy a vacation until the Tuesday after New Year.

Work has continued throughout the fall but has been hampered somewhat by bad weather and the deer hunting season when many took a couple of days off.

Thirty buildings are now in some phase of construction with two, the warehouse and garage, rapidly approaching completion. Next to them in progress are the administration building and the guard house.

Ten cell blocks are rapidly taking form and work has been started on the chapel and educational building. Gus Edwards, general superintendent for the John McShain Company, general contractors, says that it will be another year before the great bulk of the work is completed.

But some idea of what the giant institution will mean to this area when it is completed can be gained by a visit now to the grounds.

Hundreds of cars of steel and thousands of barrels of cement have been used up to the present.

Many of the buildings are now being wired for electricity.

Girl Scouts Sing Carols At Community Tree

Nearly one hundred Girl Scouts from the Back Mountain District turned out Thursday night to sing at the community Christmas tree in central Dallas. A number of adults, leaders and bystanders, joined in familiar carols led by Mrs. Howard Wright.

Girls marched to Dallas Methodist Church after carolling, to enjoy refreshments. Mrs. Joseph Schneider was chairman of the milk and cookie detail. A steady drizzle Thursday afternoon discouraged many Girl Scouts who might otherwise have joined the group. The drizzle cleared just after postponement was suggested, and plans were carried through on the original schedule.
