To A Fur Scarf

The trap jaws clanked and held him fast None marked his fright, none heard his cries His struggles ceased; he lay at last With wide uncomprehending eyes And watched the sky grow dark above And watched the sunset turn to gray; And quaked in anguish while he strove To gnaw the prisoned leg away.

Then day came rosy from the East, But still those steel jaws kept their hold; And no one watched the prisoned beast But Fear and Hunger, thirst and Cold. Oppressed by pain his dread grew numb. Fright no more stirred his flagging breath. He longed in vain to see him come. The cruel biped, bringing death. Then through the gloom that night came ONE Who set the timid spirit free. "I know thee anguish, little son— So once men trapped and tortured ME."
