

Live It Up, New Course Offered By YMCA Area Home-Makers Holiday

"Live It Up", a new type of course being presented at the YMCA Back Mountain Homemaker's Holiday program by Mrs. Ruth Darbie, home economist of the Penn State Extension Bureau, beginning Tuesday, September 20, will deal with the homemaker whose chief aim is to contribute toward a satisfying life for all members of the family.

Since families live by a pattern of their own making and no two alike, it takes real skill for the homemaker to juggle this many personed job. As our society has changed, and greater demands have been placed upon the homemakers, with families tending to live separately rather than together, the extra pair of hands is no longer available to make things go smoothly.

Today many housewives are secretary, chief chef, purchasing agent, laundress, nurse, teacher, seamstress, counselor, food processor, electrical engineer, chief maintenance manager, gardener, community member, decision maker, mediator, interior decorator, hostess and coordinator.

Mrs. Darbie will attempt in her course to bring this modern problem into focus. It will be an eight week session with the first session dealing with our pattern of living. The second and third ses-

Congregation Sees Need For Expansion

Trucksville Free Methodists will build a new church in Trucksville in 1962 or 1963, announces Pastor Grove Armstrong. The decision to build was made Wednesday evening at the First Society meeting of the 1960-61 conference year.

Pastor Armstrong made the recommendation to build in his annual report to the Society in June 1960. Action on the recommendation was scheduled for the September meeting.

Anderson Class Schedules Fall Festival Of Music September 17

A Fall Festival of Music will be presented Saturday evening at 8 in Dallas Junior High School auditorium, sponsored by the Anderson Class of Carverton Methodist Church, for benefit of the organ fund.

Albert Turner, who took the lead of Koko in a recent production of the Mikado presented by the Little Theatre, will direct. He has also been seen over Station WNAK as weekend announcer. Assisting Mr. Turner will be Mrs. Harry Spare and Mrs. William Walp, who will also appear in a duet on the program.

Sheila Godwin, new director of music at Lake-Lehman, female lead in the Mikado, will appear in Gilbert and Sullivan numbers.

Frank Prutzman will be bass soloist, and Betty Jean Davis of Trucksville will sing. Carol Vrhel, soloist for the Apollo Club, will appear.

Katherine Gilbert will sing the obligato to a Thanksgiving hymn. Gary Cragle, who has appeared on a Ted Mack Show, will play the marimbaphone, and Mrs. Turner, a Gilbert and Sullivan artist, will sing.

Mary Jane Jenkins will accompany a chorus of twenty voices.

Mrs. Richard Culver has charge of scenery, and Mrs. Merle Stafford of tickets. The public may purchase tickets at the door, or from any member of the Anderson Class.

Plans For Remodelling Of Church Embrace Relocation Of Entrance

Plans for remodeling of the present church structure at Center Moreland have been materially changed, according to Rev. Edwin Lintner, pastor of the Methodist church. After a meeting with the architect, Charles Talley, Friday night, a plan to change the front entrance to the rear and turn the entire sanctuary about, was adopted.

Mr. Talley, architect of First Methodist Church of Kingston, recommended the radical departure because it would permit almost unlimited future expansion.

Plans now include a reception room which will be used for a number of projects and increase the capacity of the church.

Funds obtained from the recent auction will go toward the building fund.

The building committee turned down all bids for construction Friday night, deeming them all far too high. The committee reported its action to the official board Tuesday evening.

Construction, says Rev. Lintner, is expected to start within the next three weeks.

Mr. Talley specializes in institutional designs. When planning a church, he studies the community and its needs before making his first rough draft.
