WILKES-BARRE BARONS HOME SATURDAY NIGHT WITH SCRANTON MINERS

Having moved into the first division last week-end the Wilkes-Barre Barons will try and strengthen their position this week when they tangle with the Baltimore Bullets Friday night at Baltimore, and then return home Saturday night to tangle with the Scranton Miners at 8:30.

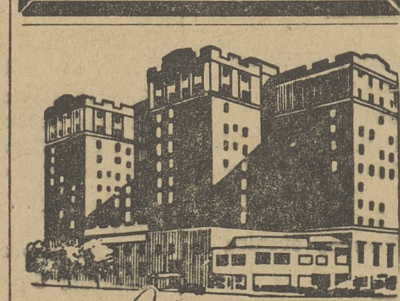

Scranton will be playing under their new player-coach, Togo Palazzi. Palazzi was given the job last week, replacing Marty Satalino.

In a player deal the past week Wilkes-Barre acquired Satalino for more backcourt strength, while Carl Belz was sent to Scranton. Eddie White also acquired former Navy star, Jay Metzlar from Sunbury last week. Metzlar was one of the standouts as Barons topped Williamsport Sunday 143-134. He tallied 26 points while hauling down plenty of rebounds.

Ways To Meet The Family's Milk Needs

How much milk does the family need? This question needs serious consideration, says Mrs. Ruth Darbie, extension home economist, Luzerne county.

Here's a guide to a family's milk quota: Each child needs 2 to 4 cups of milk every day; each teenager needs a full quart; expectant mothers, a quart; nursing mothers, 1 1/2 quarts; and all other adults, 2 to 3 cups daily. By simple addition you can find out your family needs.

An easy way to meet the family milk quota is to serve it as a beverage. Steaming cocoa may taste good on brisk mornings. For variety with snacks, try making different milk drinks. Serve eggnog or milkshakes flavored with chocolate, spices, or molasses. Banana, strawberry, and other fruit purees, may be used.

You can use milk in cooking. Cream soups, scalloped dishes, and many desserts contain milk. Some milk products, such as Cheddar cheese, cottage cheese, and ice cream, may be substituted for part of the milk in the diet.

There are many other ways to get milk into family needs. Make sure everyone gets the milk he needs for good health.
