1960 Financial Report Shows That Auction Income Is Vital To Library

The financial report presented by Homer B. Moyer, treasurer, at the annual meeting of Back Mountain Memorial Library Association, on Thursday night shows that the Library would fail to meet its current operation expenses by more than $5,100 per year if it were not for the income derived from its annual Auction.

Total receipts from all other sources, including School District and Dallas Borough Council appropriations, plus income from investments and contributions from Dallas Woman's Club, Book Club and others amount to slightly less than $6,000 per year.

While the Library Association has built up a sound endowment fund of slightly more than $66,000 during its sixteen years existence, the income from these investments amounts to less than $2,000 annually which can be used for current operating expenses.

The importance of the continued success of the Auction cannot be too highly stressed. One year of failure due to bad weather, community indifference or other causes would present a serious problem for the Association. It is for this reason, and to assure the continued expansion and enlargement of its service that the Library Association must eventually look to other sources of income, possibly taxation.

Few libraries in the country in communities of similar size, are in as strong a financial position for growth as Back Mountain Memorial Library but this has come about because of appreciation in investments and a wise use of funds.

Only two special funds other than those established from Auction receipts have ever been given to the Library from private sources. They are the Dr. Sherman Schooley Memorial Fund, established from the memorial gifts of his friends and patients, and the Bertha Hutson Fund, established under the will of the late Bertha Hutson of Franklin Street, Dallas.

This points up the necessity for others who are interested in the advancement and continued success of the Library to remember the Association in their wills and through insurance policies. Presently the income from the Schooley and Hutson Funds amounting to $155.02 is earmarked for the purchase of books.

Has Treasured Letter From Richard Nixon

Carol Ann Williams, 19, the Dallas girl who kept up with her class at Westmoreland, though never attending sessions, and graduated with the others two years ago, treasures a letter which she recently received from former Vice President Richard Nixon.

The letter graciously acknowledges good wishes of the writer to a defeated candidate for the presidency. Carol, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. G. Stewart Williams, Parrish Street, appeared on the front page of the Dallas Post in February of 1959, a glowing example of what can be done by parental care and therapy given by the Crippled Children's Foundation. Carol suffered a crippling attack of encephalitis when she was an infant, and has never been able to attend school. She is, however, making steady progress toward normal walking.

"An inferiority complex could be a good thing... if the right persons had it."

The lifespan of a dollar bill is about 13 months, on the average, while a 10-dollar bill lasts four years.

New Statistics Handbook Lists Vital State Data

The 1960 edition of the Pennsylvania Statistical Abstract, a handbook of up-to-the-minute facts on the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania, was released today by the State Department of Internal Affairs.

Described by Secretary of Internal Affairs, Genevieve Blatt, as "a publication without equal among State government compendiums of this kind in the United States," the Abstract was compiled by the Department's Bureau of Statistics. The book's 264 pages of statistical tables, graphs, charts and maps is an expansion of the previous edition with several new categories and a wider range of subject activities.

The variety and scope of the information in the Abstract make it an invaluable time saver for busy people in immediate need of such data. It discloses, for example, that the number of physicians in Pennsylvania increased from a total of 16,500 in 1950 to 19,536 in 1959; that out of more than 10,000 lawyers in the state only 165 are women; that the rural farm population has shrunk from 705,207 in 1950 to an estimated 557,000 in 1960. Pennsylvania's court system is described, how many members of the minor judiciary there are in all 67 counties and their political affiliation, and never-before-published data on local elections and registration of voters. Sources of the state's revenue are shown.

This year's handbook is larger than the 1959 edition by six sections and 95 statistical tables. There are 269 statistical tables in the current edition, 21 maps and 14 graphs and charts. Ready reference to all subjects is facilitated by a table of contents, an alphabetical index, extensive informational notes, and reference to other sources of data.

Miss Blatt said the new Abstract, because of its broad coverage of the factors involved, "is a guide to increased knowledge of the dynamic forces that are shaping Pennsylvania's present day society and economy." The book includes data on population, education, governmental finances, manufacturing, agriculture, and other aspects of the life in Pennsylvania. In addition it has broken new ground by carrying information never before published in such fields as natural-resources conservation, the financing of welfare services, the work-load of the courts and legislature, the availability of civil-defense personnel, and the accomplishments of the State's three borrow-and-build authorities.

The 30 sections into which the 1960 Abstract is divided are: (1) population, income and religion; (2) education; (3) climate and geography; (4) parks and recreation; (5) natural resources and conservation; (6) vital statistics; (7) accidents and accident prevention; (8) health, rehabilitation, and hospitals; (9) mental health; (10) welfare services and resources; (11) social insurance, financial assistance, and veterans' benefits; (12) courts and law; (13) crime and law enforcement; (14) correction and parole; (15) elections, legislation, and legislators; (16) state government finances and employment; (17) local government; (18) local planning, redevelopment, and authorities; (19) prices and consumer expenditures; (20) labor force, employment and earnings; (21) agriculture; (22) mineral production; (23) construction; (24) manufacturing; (25) transportation; (26) communications and public utilities; (27) distribution, trade, and services; (28) banking and finance; (29) foreign commerce; (30) military affairs and civil defense.

For anyone who wants to know more about such things as Pennsylvania elections, school children, prisons, births and deaths, state parks, strikes, public assistance, construction, or dozens of other subjects, the "Pennsylvania Statistical Abstract" for 1960 is his meat. It can be purchased for $1.50 plus six cents State sales tax, total $1.56, from the State Bureau of Publications, Department of Property and Supplies, Tenth and Market Streets, Harrisburg. Checks or money orders made payable to the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania should accompany all orders.
