Woolbert Wages Spirited Fight

His Dad Was Leader In Republican Party

THEODORE "TED" WOOLBERT

"Ted" Woolbert, 186 Main Street, Shavertown, is one of three candidates on the Republican ticket for the office of Tax Collector in Kingston Township at next Tuesday's election.

A health condition brought on by twenty-five years of foundry work resulted in a delicate lung operation two years ago and this was further complicated by a thrombosis last summer which left one side partially paralyzed. For these reasons, "Ted" decided early to aspire for the tax office and was the first in the township to announce his candidacy.

"Ted" Woolbert was born and reared in Kingston Township. His father's name, the late "Sam" Woolbert, is synonymous to many of the older people with Republican affairs, since he served the party for many years as a committeeman and later as road supervisor.

"Teddy" attended the public schools and completed additional courses at Pennsylvania State Extension School.

He has always maintained an interest in school activities and points out that since the major portion of the tax collector's income comes from school taxes he believes that the Republican nominee for this office should believe in the public schools and have his children attend them.

"Ted's" daughter, Gail, is a Westmoreland graduate and daughters, Judy and Linda, are now students there.

In 1958 "Ted" instigated a movement to furnish a skating rink for children at the old Little League Field. Money was raised but the project had to be abandoned because the field was impractical for skating purposes. The money was then turned over to Shavertown Parent Teacher Association.

"Ted" was a familiar figure in Little League activities, serving a number of years as an umpire. He has been active in all community efforts and a participant in church affairs for many years. He is an avid supporter of the high school athletic teams and can be seen at almost every game in every sport.

Woolbert believes that restoration of the Republican party in this county is dependent on new faces and a revived effort of a united party. He is, therefore, in sympathy with the Republican County slate of new candidates and community level that plan should be adhered to. If Republicans are to regain lost ground in next year's gubernatorial and congressional elections he believes the foundation should be laid in this year's elections by the individual voter making sure that he casts his ballot. In this way the minority party can show its opposition that it is a live, vibrant and powerful force in government.

"Ted" Woolbert has been a property owner in Shavertown for many years. His wife, the former Florence Dig, has a wide acquaintance throughout the Township and has been a participant in many community efforts. "Ted" is a member of the Shavertown Firemen's Association and the Ambulance fund.

YMCA Indian Guide Tribe Form Wyoming Indian Nation

Capouse, Shawnee and Delaware Indian Guides Tribes of the Back Mountain YMCA have formed the Wyoming Nation.

At the initial meeting of the Nation officers were elected and tentative plans made for an outing and induction ceremony for the tribes.

Long Bow (Duncan) Whitehead, Delaware Tribe, was elected Chief; Big Hat (Clayton) Stetson, Shawnee, Tally Keeper (secretary); and Big Feather Jordan was elected Wampum Bearer (treasurer).

Each tribe will be represented in the Nation by its chief and one other big brave. Chiefs are: Capouse, Big Thunder (Al) Turner; Shawnee, Walking Bear (George) Nichols; Delaware, Running Horse (Ken) Young.

Purpose of Indian Guides is to bring fathers and sons together for semi-monthly meetings and in projects between meetings.

Fathers with sons, six to eight years old interested in the program should contact the Back Mountain YMCA in Shavertown or Robert A.

Borough PTA To Hear Superintendent Mellman

Dallas Borough PTA Monday night will have as speaker Dr. Robert A. Mellman, superintendent of Dallas Schools, who will take as his topic "This Past Year," a review of what has been accomplished.

Election and installation of officers will take place, and there will be recognition of teachers.
