Don't Hoist Children Over Curb By The Arm

Who was the jerker?

A jerked elbow is a dislocated

Usually it happens to a child between 2 and 6 years of age. Brought into the doctor's office. the crying child holds one arm stiffly, with the elbow slightly bent and the palm turned downyard.

The child is likely to resist bitterly any handling of the involved arm. ger. X-rays usually negative and many general practitioners do not use the symptoms of the jerked elbow.

There is little or no swelling. Treatment for jerked elbow is a factor in causing skin cancer,
