Traditional May Day Crowning At College Misericordia

Sunday gave College Misericordia's May Crowning ceremony a traditional setting. Fresh Spring green of the campus moved in grace with the wind, and leaves sparkled as they turned in the luminous sunlight. Crowds of interested relatives and friends followed the procession from Walsh auditorium around the circle to the front of Misericordia's administration building.

The May Procession began in the front of Walsh auditorium where May Queen Annette Kraynak was crowned by Elizabeth Galvin, president of the Senior Class. As the students assembled for this coronation scene, they sang Salve Mater Misericordia. After the crowning and as they walked into line for procession, they sang the Alma Mater. Underclassmen in academic dress walked before the seniors who wore formal full-length pastel dresses. Last in line were the May Queen with her attendants, Mary Alice Lawlor and Elizabeth Galvin.

Students assembled in formation within the circle front of Misericordia, and the Queen with her attendants walked to the statue of the Blessed Virgin that faces the administration building. There the

May Queen symbolically crowned the Blessed Virgin Queen of May.

The crown used in the ceremony was blessed by the Right Reverend Monsignor James T. Clarke. The Reverend Edmund F. Byrne recited the Act of Consecration. Assembled students sang the Coronation Hymn as Annette Kraynak placed the crown. Following this ceremony, the Right Reverend Michael C. Polcha, pastor of Holy Trinity Church, Swoyersville, addressed the students and their guests. Misericordia's May Day ceremony ended with the students singing the hymn, Holy God.

DOGS SHOULDN'T BE TEASED

By Bob Bartos, Manager, Friskies Research Kennels
Every new puppy should come with a tag attached to his collar reading, "PLEASE DON'T TEASE." Dogs don't understand teasing. There's no knowing how many potentially sweet dispositions are slightly soured as a result of children and adults alike having fun at the expense of their pet.

A dog will often lose his trust in you if, for example, you let him believe you're offering him a bite of food and then, when he approaches full of eager anticipation, you show him an empty hand. Never let a dog believe that he's going to get something he likes, or do something he likes, and then not follow through.

Youngsters often taunt a dog they see tied up by shouting at him or tossing things at him. He may come to associate all children with those who have teased him and become untrustworthy where youngsters are concerned.

Then, what seems like a game to humans may be interpreted as teasing by a dog. When you roughhouse with a puppy, for example, he must either run or stand his ground. If he stands his ground, he'll use his only weapon, his teeth, to ward you off.

When he's small those little nips don't hurt. You're amused and encourage him to show his spirit and fight back. It's not so amusing, however, when he grows bigger and the nips grow stronger. Now you have to break him of the habit of biting and this isn't always easy. It's far simpler never to introduce the puppy to a game that encourages him to use his teeth.

Feeding Tip: When the puppy is teething, he'll be less apt to chew on the furniture if you supply him with a large knuckle bone or give him top quality prepared dog biscuits such as Friskies cubes to munch on.
