

This Week AT THE COLLEGE

JEAN DRAPIEWSKI

"Cross off another day"... "One day less"... "Only three more to go"... All these phrases are typical tidbits of the current campus conversation. Not that the girls are unhappy at the college—quite the contrary is true. Sunday, May 28, Graduation Day, marks a milestone in the life of every Misericordian.

The frosh look forward to that day when they will no longer be looked upon as "those weird things crawling around the campus," but full-fledged collegians—sophomores! And those sophs... Well, those sophs will doff their cloak of silliness and assume the dignified aura of upperclassmen, looking forward to the Junior Ring Dance. Stepping up into the well-worn shoes of the graduating seniors will be the junior class. This day, however, will be even more memorable for the present seniors. Then they will receive a key that will open the door to a new and unknown future. They will then step across the threshold into this future as graduates of College Misericordia.

Preparation for this day has been going on since the very beginning of their lives; however, more tangible evidence of this preparation has been taking place this past week. On Sunday the seniors paid final honor as students of Misericordia to the Blessed Virgin Mary at the annual May Crowning. Attended by Elizabeth Galvin and Mary Alice Lawlor, May Queen Annette Kraynak placed a wreath of white flowers upon the granite statue in front of the college. Each senior, attired in a pastel gown and carrying a spring bouquet, was a queen in her own right. The underclassmen in formal academic costume formed an honor guard.

Monday afternoon the underclassmen assembled to pay final tribute to the graduation candidates at the Honors Convocation. Senior class members who made outstanding contribution to the college during their past four years were awarded membership in the Mercy Honor Society, Sigma Phi Sigma. Climaxing these events will be the Hooding Ceremony, Baccalaureate Mass, and Commencement Convocation this weekend.

While the seniors have been experimenting a joyous social whirl with Communion breakfasts, teas, and parties, most of the underclassmen have barricaded themselves in their rooms—a sure sign of exams. Don't complain girls! Think of what you can look forward to... summer vacation, summer jobs, next year, and next year's exams!

BAND ATHLETIC BANQUET

Monday evening the Parent-Teacher's Association sponsored the annual Band Athletic Banquet. It was a buffet dinner and dance honoring all athletes, cheerleaders, and band members. A cold buffet dinner was served in the gym at 7:30. Dancing started at 8:00. The awards were given out at 10:00 and at 11:00 the students left for home.

This is the first year that a dance was held at the banquet. Most of the students enjoyed the change.

COURSE SELECTION NIGHT
Last Wednesday evening the guidance department of our school devoted its time to help next year's Freshmen select courses. Mr. Johnson and Mrs. Reed were in charge. They, along with a few other faculty members, discussed with each parent the various courses the school offers and the ability of their child.

CLASS NIGHT
Tomorrow evening will be the first of the Lehman Seniors' class activities, leading to that big night of graduation. They have chosen "A TV Spectacular" for their theme. It is under the direction of Mr. Oakley. There will be a lot of laughs. Friday, May 26 is class night.

The Future Teachers of America held their second night meeting for this year. It was a joint meeting with the Lake Chapter. The speaker for the evening was Elizabeth Galvin, senior from College Misericordia. Miss Galvin was a student teacher at the Lehman Building.

She explained to us the students' college schedule. A few helpful hints were given as to what were the up and coming fields in the teaching

KEYETTE NEWS

Keyettes are honored to have the privilege of being the Queen's Guard for May Day last Thursday. Instead of our regular uniforms we were dressed as cowgirls with guns to do the honors.

Two of the Keyettes were in the Queen's Court. They are Beverly King and Sandra Chere.

We wish to thank all of the people who helped support the Key Club and Keyettes carwash at Birth's Esso Station.

On June 17, the Keyettes will be marching at Wellsboro in the Laurel

Festival. This is a very big parade, and we are looking forward to it.

Dallas Township PTA To Elect New Officers

Mrs. Stanley S. Davies, president, will preside at the Dallas Township P.T.A. meeting Thursday night at 8 when officers will be elected to serve the 1961-62 school term. A film "The school and the community" will be shown.

Attorney Robert Fleming will speak briefly on the legislation now pending in Harrisburg concerning teacher's salaries.

An invitation to attend this final meeting of the season is extended to parents of students entering Junior High School in the Fall.
