Hayfield Farm Going Out Of Sheep Raising

Hayfield Farm is going out of the sheep business—too difficult to get experienced help. The sheep, mixed breed, are for sale, in whole or in part of the flock of seventy, including ewes and lambs.

E. V. Chadwick, Luzerne County agent, says that sheep raising is something which should be encouraged for this area, as the climate is a natural for wool growing and lamb production.

It looks like a good chance for some young farmer to get a start in the sheep business, with expectation of two crops a year: lambs in the early spring, and wool in May. The animals have already been sheared for the season.
