

Arts And Crafts Booth To Add Novelty Touch To Library Auction

The Arts and Allied Crafts booth at the Library Auction promises to be a strong drawing card. Mrs. DeWitt Smith is making enthusiastic plans for an array of paintings and of various interesting projects such as leather-work, reverse painting on glass, decoration, and quick-sketch portrait work.

The tent will be brought to life by a candy-striped front, and by small tables with red and white checked covers, plus a colorful display of bright decorations. Red geraniums will be used as color accent.

Five members of the committee will take turns doing the quick portrait sketches: Mrs. DeWitt Smith, Mrs. John Vivian, Mrs. Joseph Betts, Mrs. Neville Shea, and Mrs. Myron Baker.

Situated on the terrace above the auction grounds, the tent will be much better lighted and arranged than it was last year when it made its first appearance as a novelty, using materials at hand. The Art Booth is growing up rapidly, to take its place as one of the unusual features of the Auction.

On the committee, in addition to those already mentioned, are Mrs. John McCartney, Mrs. Paul Mulcey, Mrs. James Lacy, Mrs. John Plumer, Mrs. John Ridall, Mrs. Robert Post. Offering the use of her telephone for convenience of people who make inquiries from the Wilkes-Barre area, are Mrs. Harry Schooley and Mrs. Robert Rosenbluth.

The committee sent out 300 flyers to members of the Art League, with expectation of having a goodly number of pictures donated, also decorative plaques and paired pieces for children's rooms, things which can be sold for a reasonable price, but still have definite artistic value.

Unsold items, stresses Mrs. Smith, may be reclaimed by the donor after the Auction is over.

The casual atmosphere of the Art Booth will be carried out by a number of devices, making it an attractive place to sit down and enjoy a glass of iced tea or coffee, away from the bustle of the auction block.

Mrs. Smith was hostess to her committee Wednesday afternoon at her home in Elmcrest.
