 1959 — Donald Smith and Myron Baker.

1960 — Myron Baker and Dr. Lester Jordan.
 1961 — Dr. Lester Jordan, Richard Demmy and John Conyngham.

Among the men holding the important assignment of new goods chairmen over the years were: Durrelle T. Scott, Sr., Robert Bachman, Charles Rinehimer, H. W. "Chick" Smith, and Atty. Mitchell Jenkins. This year Dr. Stanley Hozempt is doing a fine job.

Many Strawberry Pickers

Picking berries under a blazing Saturday morning sun at the Fred Udyk Berry Farm in Sweet Valley, were constant relays of families, gathering material for strawberry jam. As many as a hundred people were in the field at a time, and cars were parked everywhere. The season, late in starting, is approaching its end. Fred promises a crate of berries for the Library Auction if the weather is favorable.

ROANOKE GRADUATE

NANCY MARIE VALENTINE

Nancy Marie Valentine, daughter of Atty. and Mrs. William A. Valentine and the late Helen Valentine, was one of sixty six seniors to receive degrees at the 119th Commencement of Roanoke College. She maored in Spanish.

A graduate of Wyoming Seminary, she attended Lebanon Valley College for two years, entering Roanoke as a junior.

She is a member of Delta Gamma women's fraternity, and served as public relations chairman for that group. In addition, she was circulation manager for the weekly college paper, The Brackety-Ack, and was elected senior class representative to the annual College May Court.

She also served on the College Coramons Committee, charged with reflecting student ideas about menus for resident students.

Nancy is granddaughter of Judge Alfred Valentine and the late Mary Shoemaker Valentine.

Alice Ann Albright

Mr. and Mrs. Norman Albright, Bloomsburg, announce the birth of their first child, a daughter, Alice Ann, born June 24 at home. Mrs. Albright is the former Janice Saunders, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Saunders of Birch Grove. Mr. Albright is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Marvin Albright of Bloomsburg.

Library Auction Chairmen Gather To Lay Final Plans For Three-Day Auction

Dr. and Mrs. Lester Jordan were host to members of the Fifteenth Library Auction Committee last Wednesday evening, at their home on Carverton Road. Robert Bachman, a former Auction chairman, president of the Back Mountain Memorial Library Association, and head auctioneer, though present, was not on hand for the picture. Unavoidably absent were also a number of key people.

Seated, left to right, in the front row are Mrs. John Rogers, Mrs. Charles Smith, Mrs. James Huston, Jr., Mrs. Albert Torr, Mrs. Stuart Marks, Mrs. William Pierce, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Lester Hauck.

Second row, Mrs. Edward Ratcliff, William Moss, Mr. and Mrs. Homer Moyer, Charles Glawe, Earl Phillips, Douglas Jones, Mr. and Mrs. James Alexander, Lemuel Troster, Mrs. Jack Stanley, Myron Baker, and Doc Jordan.

Crowned Rodeo Queen At Lehman Horse-Show Square-Dance

Karen Faux, fourteen year old, Tunkhannock High School girl, was chosen Queen of the Rodeo Monday night, when twenty squares danced to the music of Panky Stolarick's orchestra, changing partners, swinging, clapping and stamping in a riot of color and motion that took in the entire inner ring of the horse-show grounds.

land, as the winner. Karen, in a matching kerchief, was the belle of the rodeo ball.

Standing at her left in the picture is Linda Smith, 16, a junior at Westmoreland High School, and at her right Carol Zibelin of Scranton, one of the riders in the Horse-Show.

Karen was given a portable record player, with an album of Glenn Miller records, and the runners-up Admiral Transistor radios, all gifts from Charles Gosart. Satin evening bags from Rosemary Sport-wear were given the winners.

John Fielding and Clyde Birth, judges, stand at either end of the line-up, with Mrs. Lyle Slaff, also a judge, holding one of the satin evening bags, next to Clyde Birth.

Karen and her attendants, in pastel gowns, rode in the parade Tuesday morning.

Mrs. Stuart Marks was in charge of rodeo dance plans.

It's Not A Little Hairy Man, Nor A Tarantula, Nor A Visitor From Space

Two little boys stopped in their tracks in front of Fred Anderson's house on Pioneer Avenue.

Finally they plucked up their courage. "What's that you've got there, lady, a little hairy man?"

Mrs. Anderson was strongly tempted to say, "No, it's an outsize tarantula," but swallowing her baser instincts she said, "No, it's a chimpanzee."

Two small boys breathed more easily.

Brenda has caused quite a bit of comment since warm weather started and she moved from the garage to the porch during the day-light hours.

Most people think they are seeing things, and do a double-take.

Brenda has been living with the Andersons for several months, ever since she moved in with them from her Carverton home.

Mrs. Harold Dixon, her former owner, found it a little difficult to take care of anything as rambunctious as a monkey. Brenda takes up a good bit of room. She stands two and half feet tall, and she can go leaping about at a great rate. Brenda would never take a prize as a beauty queen, but she has her points.

She's an affectionate little animal with a yen for hugging and kissing if she happens to like you, but a cold shoulder if you don't measure up. Susie, the Andersons' college-age daughter, hasn't quite made the grade, but she's trying.

Mrs. Anderson stands ace high, so do Fred and Fred Jr., but Susie has been away from home quite a bit, and Brenda considers her an interloper.

Which is ironical, because it was Susie who has always wanted a monkey, and bulldozed her parents into getting Brenda in the first place.

There is sort of an armed truce between them. They have an agreement that Susie can give Brenda candy, or a slice of water-melon which she eats like a small pickaninny, in return for which Brenda will refrain from biting her, or confine the bite to a gentle nip.

When the Andersons first came home with Brenda, they put her in the basement, and threw in the rabbit for company. Brenda loved the rabbit. She used to pick it up by the ears, staring into its silly face, a habit which disconcerted the rabbit.

Brenda has been lured down from the tiptop of the T-V antenna by being shown a ripe banana. She has turned up in a number of odd places, but on the whole she is a pretty good girl.

She feels that any household which features two pigeons, constant litters of hamsters, two dogs and assorted cats, is a good place for a chimp, and she takes kindly to the roomy corner of the garage arranged for her comfort, and to sunshiny sessions on the front porch.

Even if small boys do wonder about her sometimes, and think maybe she is a visitor from Outer Space.
