

The Organ Will Go Over The Block

Doc Jordan and Jack Stanley unpack a new organ for the Library Auction. It's the kind that's simple to play, with chords mapped out by numbers. Not large, and not too heavy.

Isaacs Pulls Surprise

Howard Isaacs pulled the surprise of the season and knocked the wind out of the pennant bound Daddow-Isaacs team last Wednesday. Liebold pitched and hit his team to victory. Liebold hit a three run homer in the first inning that proved to be the margin for the winners.

Isaacs Measures Harter's

Duke Isaacs took the measure of Harter's Dairy 8 to 2 last Tuesday night. Siegfried was the winning pitcher and Sponseller was the loser. The winners put together two four run innings to make it easy for Siegfried. In the third Kerpovich singled, Siegfried reached first on a fielders choice, Richards walked and singles by Antanaitis and Szela accounted for the four runs. In the sixth inning, Prutzman and Williams walked and scored on Misson's double. Kerpovich singled home Misson and came around himself on two wild pitches. The losers scored a single run in the second when Jones singled and scored by Bertram. In the fifth, Kern singled, stole second and scored on an error. Kerpovich lead both teams in the hitting department getting two singles for four trips.

Lazarus Runs Wild

Lazarus made easy picking of Gosart's on Thursday with 15 to 0 win. McCrea hurled shutout ball while his team-mates banged out fifteen hits and scored fifteen runs to win going away. In spite of the fact that the winners had fifteen hits, it was the errors of the losers that opened the door for most of the scores against Stanton. The one run scored in the fourth was the only run scored without an error being committed. Dennis and McCrea were the big lumbermen for the winners with three hits each. Hudak and Kaschak scored three runs each to lead in that department.

Gosart's Downed

Daddow-Isaacs defeated Gosart's on Monday by 7 to 2. Supulski's two-run homer in the third was the margin of victory that Jenkins needed to post the win. Fedak relieved in the fifth to preserve the victory for Jenkins. Martin took the loss. Evenson had two singles to lead the hitters for the winning team while M. Morris with a homer and single did the heavy stick work for the losers.

Here and There

The General Assembly voted down a bill to abolish the death penalty in Pennsylvania during a session packed session Wednesday. The 173-32 vote came after two hours of debate. Before the vote Republican and Democratic leaders had agreed to release the legislators from party commitments. 16 Republicans and 16 Democrats voted for repeal of capital punishment.

Representative Thomas McCormack, a Philadelphia Democrat who led the opposition to repeal, argued his position by saying "We can be certain that an executed criminal will never commit another crime."

Republican Representative Francis Worley, of Adams, a co-sponsor of the bill, maintained that despite the vote "public opinion is definitely against the death penalty."

Governor David Lawrence had granted temporary stays of execution to eight prisoners pending the General Assembly's decision. The last execution in Pennsylvania occurred October 26, 1959.

THE TOWN OF BERWICK celebrated the 175th anniversary of its founding last week with colorful ceremonies, a parade, and the presentation of the sheriff of the Scotch town from which it drew its name.

Alexander S. Smith, sheriff of Berwick - on - Tweed in Scotland, was the star attraction of the festivities which culminated in a two hour parade on Saturday. Most of the men of the community sported beards which they had grown for the celebration.

A marker identifying the site of the first settlement of Wilkes-Barre in 1762 has long been listed as a prime tourist attraction by the Wyoming Historical and Geological Society. On Wednesday the Society, and city officials, discovered to their embarrassment that the marker has disappeared, and no one is quite sure what's happened to it.

Employees of the Parks Department sent to clean the marker first reported the disappearance. Attorney Theodore A. Evans, chairman of the Art Jury which inspects Wilkes-Barre's monuments quickly reported that no one in the city government had authorized removal.

The answer to the mystery, Jones suggested, may lie with the State Highway Department. He said that C. L. Smith, county superintendent, told him that the marker was probably removed by the Highway Department for cleaning.

So that's how the Case of the Missing Marker stands - at least until Evans checks the records in Harrisburg.
